Southern Group Seeking

Toss In Hat

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—President Roosevelt's Democratic colleagues on Capitol Hill generally believe today that he will be a candidate for a fourth term unless, in anticipation of a Republican landslide, he names a deputy to carry the party standard through the 1944 campaign.

His colleagues say the President will make no announcement of his 1944 plans prior to the convention—a repeat of his 1940 strategy—unless he decides to retire.

But 1944 will differ from 1940 for Mr. Roosevelt in one major aspect. In 1944, he will meet with determined opposition from many of his own party leaders if he seeks a fourth term. This opposition will fight in primaries, in the convention and in the campaign itself—even to the possible extent of creating a third party along Jeffersonian Democratic lines for the sole purpose of trying to defeat him.

Support Byrd

At the moment, there is a strong southern conservative group, with scattered support elsewhere, hoping to persuade Sen. Harry Flood Byrd, of Virginia, to toss his hat into the presidential ring against Mr. Roosevelt. If Byrd decides to make the race, his supporters say they will stay with him in the convention to the last ballot, take the anti-fourth term banner into a "rump" convention and launch a third party. With a third party, they propose to take the Democratic south out of Mr. Roosevelt's column.

One of the Byrd followers explained:

"Mr. Roosevelt can manipulate the convention to win a fourth nomination but not without opposition. And that opposition will defeat him in the election, even if we have to form a third party as the gold Democrats did in 1896 to defeat William Jennings Bryan."

The President also faces fourth-term opposition from Democratic (Continued on Page Three)

Tony F. Notaro finally had his ration book revoked after the fuel "czars" decided that it was "pleasure" even if he did drive to see his sister-in-law in an attempt to reduce her alimony demands.

Nation Locked in Grim War Centers Tribute On Shrine of Lincoln

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 12—A nation locked in grim war for survival centered its tribute on this first shrine of Abraham Lincoln today as it observed the 134th anniversary of the martyred president's birth.

To the Lincoln tomb, which is located in Oak Ridge cemetery, went two annual pilgrimages to pay solemn homage to the Civil War president who placed liberty above all else.

The American Legion conducted its ninth annual pilgrimage to the Lincoln tomb and the young Republican clubs of Illinois conducted their eleventh.

WELLES URGES POST WAR PACT

Time For Allied Action Is

Raps Rivalry

NEW YORK, Feb. 12—America's allies today were told by Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles that now is the time for the United Nations to agree on definite post-war plans, including the policing of the world and measures to avoid economic rivalry.

The imperative necessity of translating into practical reality the principles of the Atlantic Charter was emphasized by Welles in an address at the opening ceremonies of United Nations month at Rockefeller Center.

Welles' public disclosure that the United States government wants to reach a binding agreement on post-war plans without delay came swiftly in the wake of demands for such action from congressional quarters.

Follows Knox Statement
It followed Secretary of the Navy Knox's statement that the United States must have permanent air and naval bases in the Pacific, and demands by Sen. Tydings (D) Md., and Chairman Vinson (D) Ga., of the House Naval Affairs Committee, that negotiations be started with some of the allies to obtain such bases under the lend-lease act.

Asserting that the Atlantic Charter contains all the principles required to achieve "that kind of world of the future which alone can offer compensation to humanity for the sorrow and sacrifice expended in its achievement," Welles said:

Duty Is Plain

CONSPIRACY TO DESTROY SMALL BUSINESS SEEN

Tennessee Democrat Says

BITTER FEUD FORECAST

Barkley Also Declares He

Long Enough

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—Sen. Tom Stewart (D) Tenn., a member of the Senate Small Business Committee, today said that he plans a senate speech next week in which he will charge existence of a conspiracy within the War Production Board to destroy small business.

"There is evidence that there definitely is a group in the WPB intent on destroying small business and already hundreds of firms have been driven out of existence," said Stewart.

He plans to carry on attacks on WPB which began in the senate yesterday when Sen. Harry Truman (D) Mo., chairman of the War Investigating Committee, protested against ouster of Lou Holland as chairman of the WPB smaller plants corporation and his replacement by Col. Robert Woods Johnson.

The declared intention of Stewart, who asserted that the motive behind the attack on small business is the desire to create huge monopolies, presaged a bitter feud between the senate and War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson.

Assistance Blocked

Truman charged that the Smaller Plants Corporation, set up by congress with $150,000,000 capital to obtain war contracts for small firms, was blocked by industrialists in the WPB, including many $1 a year men.

The senate attack was climaxed by the declaration of Democratic Senate Leader Barkley that he had held his "tongue in his cheek" long enough on the question of failure of the smaller war plants corporation.

DETROIT POLICE BALK WIMPIES

Fugitive Steer Slain And Citizens Move In With Butcher Knives

DETROIT, Feb. 12—It certainly isn't healthy these days for cattle to be on the streets of Detroit, dead or alive.

As a matter of fact, people seem to become downright vicious when they sight a juicy steer.

At least that is what Sgt. Harris Merritt, of the police force, believed today.

The trouble began when 10 steers escaped from a packing company truck. Eight of the animals were quickly rounded up before harm could come to them. But two of the more frolicsome beasts hoofed it up the street.

Aided by a sizeable crowd of onlookers whose interest seemed to surpass the curiosity stage, police trapped two of the animals but injured one and it had to be shot.

Half of the crowd immediately disappeared, Merritt related, only to reappear shortly armed with the necessary tools to slice up the dead animal.

"I've never seen so many butchering knives, meat cleavers and butchering equipment turn up so fast," said Merritt. "Why those people were actually going to cut up that steer right on the spot."

The crowd was finally convinced that they would have to obtain their meat through the regular channels and dispersed.

Maj. Gen. Charles T. Harris, commanding general of the Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds, came to Elwood to present the award.

ADMINISTRATION STANDS PAT FOR 11,000,000 ARMY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—The administration shows no sign of retreat in the plans for total armed forces of 11,000,000 by the end of this year, Sen. Robert Reynolds, (D) N. C., chairman of the senate military affairs committee, said today.

"If anything there are signs of the war department becoming more insistent on carrying out its program," said Reynolds.

Meantime, a senate appropriations subcommittee, which has been investigating proposals to limit size of the army, tentatively planned to make a report on the question next week.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—Momentary intensification of America's land, sea and air offensive against the Japanese in the Pacific was indicated today by developments throughout the far-flung war zones.

Fresh offensive moves by American forces in the north and south Pacific areas were foreshadowed by U. S. seizure of all of Guadalcanal which Secretary of the Navy Knox said would provide a useful forward base in further attacks against the enemy.

America's future strategy in the war against Japan must remain a secret, but the continuing aerial blows against enemy bases indicated that U. S. forces were laying the groundwork for the all-out assaults that are expected to lead eventually to Tokyo.

Premier Gordon Conant announced the planned visit in the Ontario legislature yesterday. He declared that the invitation had come from Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

For the quintuplets, who will be nine years old on May 28, the visit promises the longest trip of their lives.

WILHELMSHAVEN ROCKED BY BIG BOMBER ATTACK

Nazis Suffer Additional

COUNTER-DRIVES BALKED

Eisenhower Turning Heat

Tunisian Coast

By International News Service

British heavy bombers roared over Germany during the night in a smashing attack on Wilhelmshaven, Nazi submarine base on the North sea. The attack came less than 24 hours after Prime Minister Winston Churchill announced an allied gain in the U-boat campaign and a sharp increase in the destruction of enemy submarines.

Wilhelmshaven was last hit by American Flying Fortresses bombers on January 27 in a raid which was reported to have done devastating damage to the Nazi port.

Last night's damaging attack on the German submarine nest cost the RAF only three planes, said the air ministry announcement.

The Nazis suffered additional heavy blows on the eastern front as Russian columns tightened the encircling ring on Kharkov, the great Ukraine industrial center which is the anchor-point on the axis defense line from the Caucasus to Orel.

Russ Move Ahead

Soviet forces drove ahead along the whole 500-mile front in a series of local engagements in which the Red army repulsed frantic German counter-attacks.

Stockholm reported that Soviet spearheads were within six to ten miles of Kharkov. Russian artillery was shelling the axis stronghold in a devastating barrage and the German retreat westward already is under way, said the Swedish dispatches.

Red army columns, smashing through the Ukraine between Kharkov and Rostov, captured the vital rail center of Loozovaya, 70 miles south of Kharkov, and virtually doomed enemy forces remaining in Kharkov. Loozovaya is a junction point on the East-West railroad from Voronezh to Kiev and the line running south from Kharkov to the Crimea.

Its fall isolates axis forces trapped in the Ukraine capital and forces them to fight or surrender, as all roads of escape have been blocked.

Close In On Rostov

Other Russian columns meantime closed in on Rostov, and Soviet commando forces were reported to have made new landings near Novorossisk, Black sea port in the western Caucasus, where the remnants of some 25 axis divisions were reported gathering for a "Dunkirk" escape to the Crimea.

As pressure on Kharkov increased, hard pressed axis forces were believed preparing to withdraw to new defense lines on the Dnieper river. Russian vanguards at Loozovaya were within 65 miles of the Dnieper.

The RAF raid on Germany followed daylight raids on occupied France and Holland. Berlin called the attacks "nuisance raids" and claimed that damage was slight.

Eisenhower Active

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, raised to the rank of a four-star general following his appointment as allied commander-in-chief in North Africa, appeared to be turning the heat on Italian-German forces clinging to positions on the Tunisian coast.

Field representatives of farm organizations and state and federal farm service agencies were meeting Friday at Fort Hayes hotel, Columbus, to map a joint program of action to solve labor and equipment problems for Ohio. The conference was called by Ohio State Grange and Ohio Farm Bureau.

Although Grange, Farm Bureau, agricultural extension service, Ohio department of education, AAA, Farm Security administration and U. S. Employment Service were vitally interested in the meeting, no local officers of any of these organizations were attending. However, their respective representatives were having part and any information of importance is expected to be passed on to the local units.

Fichter Speaks

"It is estimated that 80 percent of the labor and equipment which will be available to farmers in 1943 is already located in the local farming communities," said Joseph W. Fichter, master, Ohio State Grange, who served as chairman for the Friday conference. "It is imperative, therefore, that all farmers cooperate to the limit to get the greatest possible efficiency out of these facilities." In a closing address to the conference, Mr. Fichter termed the approved plans as "Ohio's opportunity to lead the nation" in the solution of the food production problems.

Perry L. Green, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau, addressing the conference on "The National Food Crisis," stressed the need for "all farm people to work together on the serious problems of farm labor shortage and farm equipment shortage," and called for an intensive program of cooperation by all farm organizations and agencies at local and state levels, "so that we may achieve our war production goals."

Others Speak

Other speakers on the conference program were Elmer F. Kruse, Ohio director, Agricultural Adjustment Administration; H. C. Ramsower, director, Ohio Agricultural extension service; Wade Hammond, director for Ohio U. S. Employment Service; O. E. Hill, assistant director, Ohio Department of Education, and A. L. Sor-

Highway Patrol Unit Members May Receive Call to Active Duty

Possibility was seen Friday that some of the members of Howard Hall post American Legion auxiliary highway patrol unit may be called into active service to augment the state patrol following presentation of a measure in the Ohio senate to establish an auxiliary under state law.

The bill calling for an auxiliary highway patrol unit of unlimited size and with even greater police power than the patrol itself was submitted by Senator I. E. Baker, Montgomery county Republican.

WASHINGTON C. H. COUNCIL TO BID FOR WATER PLANT

Washington C. H. council, following in the footsteps of Circleville council, has voted to offer the Ohio Water Service company $375,000 for its plant and distribution system. The same utility firm operates in both cities in addition to Marysville, Massillon, Struthers and Youngstown.

Vote recommending the $375,000 offer was a unanimous one.

Circleville council voted last week to submit the offer to the utility despite assertions by G. Taylor Evans, vice-president of the company, that it is not for sale. However, councilmen were told through counsel for the water company that a price of $550,000 had been fixed on the plant.

Council authorized a Chicago bonding house to start negotiations for the purchase.

OIL DEALERS WARNED TO POST DELIVERIES

Fuel oil dealers in the Circleville and Pickaway county area were warned Friday by OPA officials to post deliveries on the coupon sheets held by the consumer.

Regulations require dealers to post delivery gallonage as soon as the delivery is completed so that the consumer's coupon sheet will be in balance with coupons removed by the dealer.

Many dealers are failing to do this, OPA declared.

ensen, Ohio director, Farm Security administration.

While the various agencies are holding their entire facilities in readiness to function as needed, the program is one of self-help and action is expected to start at the local level. Thousands of small community groups are to be convened by interested farmers, and these groups will discuss and assimilate data about their available labor and equipment, how it can be used most efficiently, and list what additional facilities must be obtained.

Findings of the local groups, it is suggested, will be collected by farmer committees at community and county levels, and then by the joint committee of the state agencies for action requiring common approach for the larger area. Thus, the actual total needs of the farmers which must be served outside of their own efforts will be effectively cared for through the joint action of all the major farm service agencies.

RESISTANCE TO ARREST BRINGS LATER ARREST

Charged with resisting and abusing an officer and with operating an automobile when intoxicated, Tom Kopenhaver, 31, of 325 East Mount street, is scheduled for appearance before Mayor Ben H. Gordon at 7:30 p. m. Friday following his arrest Thursday night.

Kopenhaver was released under $50 bond on the resisting charge. He was arrested at his home at 10:20 p. m. Thursday by Patrolman Turney Ross and Special Officer George Davis who charges that Kopenhaver, a pipeline employee, swung a hatchet at him Wednesday night after he had put the 260-pound Texan under arrest.

Davis said he had told Kopenhaver, whom he says was intoxicated, to stay out of his automobile, but that Kopenhaver entered it. Davis placed him under arrest. As Kopenhaver left the car following arrest he swung a hatchet which Davis knocked from his hand as he started a blow at the officer. The Texan entered his car then and drove away, Davis claims.

Three other pipeline workers padded the city treasury with $80 for intoxication violations. E. H. Work, J. E. Work and Robert Squires forfeited $10 each for intoxication and J. H. Rosson paid $50 and costs for being under control of an automobile when he was intoxicated.

MARY SMITH BRINKER TO BE BURIED IN CITY

Ashes of the late Mrs. Mary Smith Brinker, native of Circleville who died February 9 in Chicago, will be brought to Circleville for interment in Forest cemetery. Cremation will follow funeral services scheduled Friday in Chicago.

Mrs. Brinker, one of the founders of the Circleville Monday club, was born here October 14, 1862, a daughter of Palmer C. and Sarah Osborn Smith. She was married to Erasmus W. Brinker, who preceded her in death.

Survivors include two children, a daughter Catherine and a son, Smith, and a sister, Miss Harriet Smith, St. Augustine, Fla.

FARM LEADERS SCAN PROBLEMS AT STATE MEET

Cooperation Urged To Get Most Out Of Available Labor, Equipment

PERRY L. GREEN SPEAKS

Necessity Of Meeting 1943 Goal Of Production Is Stressed

Field representatives of farm organizations and state and federal farm service agencies were meeting Friday at Fort Hayes hotel, Columbus, to map a joint program of action to solve labor and equipment problems for Ohio. The conference was called by Ohio State Grange and Ohio Farm Bureau.

Although Grange, Farm Bureau, agricultural extension service, Ohio department of education, AAA, Farm Security administration and U. S. Employment Service were vitally interested in the meeting, no local officers of any of these organizations was attending. However, their respective representatives were having part and any information of importance is expected to be passed on to the local units.

CONSPIRACY TO DESTROY SMALL BUSINESS SEEN

Tennessee Democrat Says Little Plants Blocked By WPB Industrialists

from WPB and made an independent agency is expected to be studied by the small business committee, which originated it.

Clean-out Feared

The Democratic leader said he had been informed that present directors of the smaller war plants corporation were to be "cleaned out" and replaced by $1 a year industrialists.

"The reason the Smaller War Plants Corporation has not functioned as congress intended is because the WPB wouldn't let it," he said.

The row over treatment of small business may lead to an intensified demand that control of purchasing be taken from the army, navy and maritime commission and placed in civilian hands.

Sen. Pepper (D) Fla., urged passage of the Pepper-Kilgore War Mobilization bill which would create a civilian head of all production. He urged Nelson to take over all power against procurement and to crush any dissension within his organization, establishing himself as the real "boss" of war production.

PIPELINE WORK MOVES RAPIDLY THROUGH AREA

Between 12 and 14 miles of the vitally important oil pipeline from Longview, Texas, to Philadelphia, Pa., and Bayonne, N. J., has been completed in Pickaway county, and the next three weeks will see many pipeline employees and their families removing from Circleville to Lancaster.

Work has progressed well through Pickaway county, pipeline officials said Friday, despite the fact that weather was too warm at times for the contractors' heavy equipment to operate efficiently through wet areas. Mud slowed down operations at times, but generally work has moved along well.

Right-of-way crews have already passed Lancaster in their clearing operations with the line to be pushed into Fairfield county just as soon as Pickaway has been traversed.

Crews employed by the H. C. Price Co., and by Bechtel and Dempsey, contractors, employed by Emergency Pipelines, Inc., a government subsidiary, started into Pickaway county north of New Holland. The line crossed Route 56 at Pherson and Route 23 just north of Little Walnut creek at the Cromley farm.

The line was built from Longview to Norris City, Ill., thence eastward. Oil is already being forced into the pipeline at Longview.

SCIOTO RIVER STARTS MOVING INTO LOWLANDS

Scioto river is rising steadily, weather observers declared Friday, but continued cold weather is expected to alleviate any dangers of flood. Crest is expected to be reached tonight.

The stream, fed by heavy rains during the last 48 hours, jumped to a 12.72 foot reading at 8 a. m. Friday, five feet higher than it was at the same hour Thursday. Some water is running into lowlands.

Circleville's low temperature Friday was 18 degrees.

REGISTRATION FOR GAS MUST BE MADE SOON

Information concerning reregistration for supplemental gasoline rations was issued Friday by Pickaway county War Price and Rationing office where it was announced that all holders of B, C or D supplementals that expire within 30 days should file renewal applications on Form R-543 which may be obtained at rationing headquarters, West High street.

Renewals must be made on this form and it supplies the office with detailed information for the board's use. Applications should be completed and mailed to the ration office where they will be processed and coupons mailed to the applicant not earlier than five days prior to the expiration date of the current ration.

No applications for special rations should be submitted to the local board from this date on. Some exceptions have been made in some rationing offices in cases of funerals and men home on furloughs from the armed forces. A ruling recently received by the OPA office prohibits granting gasoline for these purposes.

Stamp No. 4 in basic mileage Ration A books is worth four gallons of gasoline and must be used through March 21. Stamps in B and C books are good for the period noted on the book covers. Motorists are urged to check their books concerning expiration dates.

HARRY HOUDINI'S WIDOW DIES ON TRAIN IN WEST

NEEDLES, Cal., Feb. 12—Mrs. Beatrice Houdini, 69, widow of Harry Houdini, world renowned magician and escape artist, died aboard an east-bound train last night while enroute to her New York home.

Removed from the train, the body was taken to a Needles mortuary and early today was put aboard another train for New York.

Funeral services will be held in New York upon arrival, according to Mrs. Houdini's sister, Mrs. Marie Hinson of Washington Heights, N. Y.

Mrs. Houdini was placed aboard the train last night in accordance with her wish "to spend my last days at home." Weighing but 77 pounds and too weak to talk, she brightened somewhat after attendants placed her in her compartment. Shortly after, however, she suffered an attack and it was necessary to apply an oxygen mask.

NATIONAL DRAFT PERCENT HOLDS GOOD LOCALLY

Pickaway county is supplying men for the armed forces in exactly the same proportion as its total number of Selective Service registrants rates to the national total. Figures showing the percentages of men in service were announced Friday by the Office of War Information.

Ohio has 5.18 percent of the nation's registrants and the same percentage of men in service, according to the OWI. Pickaway county percentages of men registered and men in arms runs proportionately.

New York with 10.48 percent of the total registrants is now providing 10.93 percent of all men in the armed forces.

Only in nine states does the percentage of men in service as of last April 1 vary as much as one-fifth of one percent of the population, OWI said.

In Pickaway county there are a few more than 1,400 men in all branches of service at the present time. The county's population is figured at approximately 28,000.

GIVING FALSE CLUE TO SHERIFF LEADS TO JAIL

Charles Fred, 28-year-old Yellowbud man, was under arrest in Circleville jail Friday for giving false information to police and sheriff's deputies, and causing them to go on a "wild goose" chase Thursday night into the extreme northern end of Pickaway county. Fred told Chief William F. McCrady that he knew exactly where Nannie Bates Fowler, 26, wanted for murder of her husband, Guy Fowler, in Columbus, was hiding.

Chief McCrady told Deputies Bryan Custer and Vern Pontious, and an "expedition" to a point beyond Commercial Point was started. The officers and the Yellowbud man went over mud roads, through fields, and about everywhere else, McCrady said, where they found the house in which Fred said Mrs. Fowler was living the day before.

RED SKELTON DIVORCED IN FRIENDLY SUIT

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 12—Funny-man Richard (Red) Skelton and Enna Marie Skelton were right back today where they started 11 years ago—a couple of good friends, one writing gags and the other cracking them for radio and film audiences.

Divorced yesterday in a "friendly" and uncontested suit, the couple walked out of Superior Court arm in arm. The comedian waited in the wings while his estranged wife listed technical cruelty charges.

"Mr. Skelton," she told the judge, "reversed the usual order of behavior for men. Most men leave home early and come home late. He went out late and came home early—in the morning."

Mrs. Skelton will remain his chief gag writer and business manager—a job she took shortly after they first met in Kansas City, Mo., when she was a theatre usherette. They married shortly afterward.

non-interventionists. These Democrats are ready to bolt him and support the Republican nominee, if the latter's international plans are preferable to Mr. Roosevelt's. But if the GOP nominee stands beside Mr. Roosevelt on international issues, the Democratic non-interventionists are ready to support a third party nominee or launch a third party of their own.

Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, gave notice of these plans the other day when he announced he would bolt the Democratic party if its 1944 nominee were "not satisfactory." And he startled leaders of both parties by declaring former President Herbert Hoover would be the strongest candidate the Republicans could nominate. It is significant that Mr. Hoover has been critical recently of Mr. Roosevelt's policies for the postwar world.

Farley Active Meanwhile, James A. Farley, who bolted Mr. Roosevelt on the third term issue in 1940 after leading his first two victory campaigns, is stalking through the background with plans of his own. Farley recently visited Governor Sam H. Jones, of Louisiana, and former Governor Frank M. Dixon, of Alabama. Shortly afterwards, Jones proposed a new anti-New Deal party to be called Constitutional Democrats; Dixon demanded that Mr. Roosevelt immediately renounce fourth term ambitions.

There is a curious anomaly in Democratic and Republican viewpoints about 1944. Many Democratic leaders speak of a crushing party defeat next year. Many Republican leaders express fear that Mr. Roosevelt cannot be defeated; they frankly fear his campaign magic. If you wish to hear talk of victory, go to the other fellow's camp.

BRONCS MADE TO RIDE, NOT EAT, COWHANDS SAY

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Feb. 12—The horse has played an important part in the development of the west, directors of the Montana Cowboys Association declared today in condemning the movement to slaughter horses for human consumption.

They drafted a resolution to be presented to the association's annual reunion in Great Falls February 27. The practice, they asserted, was "next to barbarism."

CHILDREN SEEK TO PLAY REAL PART IN WAR

Circleville school children, who are already doing a yeoman job for Uncle Sam by buying War Bonds and Stamps as fast as they can, are seeking an opportunity to really make a contribution to the war effort.

Miss Florence Hoffman, Corwin street principal, contacted Earl A. Smith, county War Bond and Stamp chairman, Friday, asking him to find out what piece of equipment the youngsters could provide through their purchase of War Bonds and Stamps.

Smith immediately wired Ohio War Savings committee officials to learn prices of field guns, tanks, jeeps, and other equipment.

Miss Hoffman said the children of her school wish to do something tangible for the war effort, believing that their purchases may be speeded if they know they are buying some particular piece of equipment.

In many cities and towns of the nation pieces of vital war equipment have been bought through Bond and Stamp purchases, widespread publicity being given to the efforts of the boys and girls.

Smith expects an answer within a few days with the amount of Bonds and Stamps necessary to finance purchase of any particular piece of equipment outlined for him. He will pass whatever information he receives to Miss Hoffman and she to the youngsters of the school who will make their own decision concerning the amount of money they believe they can raise.

ROOSEVELT TO DISCUSS WAR IN RADIO TALK

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—President Roosevelt tonight will make a nationwide 20-minute "fireside chat" beginning at 9:30 p. m. e. w. t.

According to the White House Mr. Roosevelt's talk will range from the historic Casablanca conference with Prime Minister Churchill to domestic issues and observance of Lincoln's birthday.

Mr. Roosevelt will also speak on February 22, addressing the George Washington Day dinners, which will be held throughout the country under the auspices of the Democratic party.

can victory marked the conclusion of the first major U. S. offensive of World War II.

Under the strategy intimated by Knox Guadalcanal will be used as one of the key bases from which American forces will fan out against enemy installations now barring the way to Japan.

The secretary stressed the fact that naval policy never called for seizure of one island after another in a slow drive toward the enemy mainland. He explained that the popular conception of an "island to island campaign" was erroneous.

As Knox interpreted the American strategy islands will be used in the progress toward Japan but he intimated that attacks will be made only against key bases now held by the Japanese.

At present American efforts are concentrated on neutralizing the Japanese base at Munda, only 180 miles northwest of Guadalcanal. If American planes do not succeed in smashing this base, it may be necessary for U. S. forces to invade and seize this strategic central Solomons area.

QUIET OBSERVANCE OF LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

Circleville's observance of Lincoln's birthday was a quiet one, no public affairs being conducted in honor of the great emancipator. Schools continued classes as usual, with some classes hearing talks on the famed President and others conducted entertainments.

Retail business went on as usual, although banks and county offices were closed. Federal offices, including Selective Service, Farm Security administration and AAA, remained open.

SPANGLER FUNERAL

FOLKES TO FACE GRAND JURY IN SLAYING QUIZ

ALBANY, Ore., Feb. 12—Robert L. Folkes, 20, train cook accused of the "Lower 13" murder of a young navy ensign's bride, will face a county grand jury next Thursday at Albany, it was announced today by District Attorney Harlow Weinrick.

Folkes is charged with the first degree murder of Mrs. Martha James, 21, whose throat was cut January 23 as she lay in the berth of a Southern Pacific train.

The young Negro was arrested at Los Angeles, where he confessed, and later admitted it again. Brought to Albany, he again signed a confession in Weinrick's presence.

Folkes still awaits preliminary arraignment. A hearing scheduled for the Albany justice court was postponed early this month when the suspect asked for time to consult with counsel.

RED CROSS TO START CLASSES IN FIRST AID

First aid classes will be resumed under Red Cross supervision for Civilian Defense purposes, persons interested being asked to telephone No. 901 for registration.

Classes being organized will be held in the evenings from 7:30 until 10 o'clock, persons registering being permitted to sign up for 10-hour or 20-hour and advanced classes.

There are many persons who need first aid training before they complete their training requirements under Civilian Defense regulations. CD officials and Red Cross authorities are requesting persons who have not taken all training necessary to receive CD certificates to register now for first aid.

CONSPIRACY TO DESTROY SMALL BUSINESS SEEN

from WPB and made an independent agency is expected to be studied by the small business committee, which originated it.

Clean-out Feared

The Democratic leader said he had been informed that present directors of the smaller war plants corporation were to be "cleaned out" and replaced by $1 a year industrialists.

"The reason the Smaller War Plants Corporation has not functioned as congress intended is because the WPB wouldn't let it," he said.

The row over treatment of small business may lead to an intensified demand that control of purchasing be taken from the army, navy and maritime commission and placed in civilian hands.

Sen. Pepper (D) Fla., urged passage of the Pepper-Kilgore War Mobilization bill which would create a civilian head of all production. He urged Nelson to take over all power against procurement and to crush any dissension within his organization, establishing himself as the real "boss" of war production.

PIPELINE WORK MOVES RAPIDLY THROUGH AREA

Between 12 and 14 miles of the vitally important oil pipeline from Longview, Texas, to Philadelphia, Pa., and Bayonne, N. J., has been completed in Pickaway county, and the next three weeks will see many pipeline employees and their families removing from Circleville to Lancaster.

Work has progressed well through Pickaway county, pipeline officials said Friday, despite the fact that weather was too warm at times for the contractors' heavy equipment to operate efficiently through wet areas. Mud slowed down operations at times, but generally work has moved along well.

Right-of-way crews have already passed Lancaster in their clearing operations with the line to be pushed into Fairfield county just as soon as Pickaway has been traversed.

Crews employed by the H. C. Price Co., and by Bechtel and Dempsey, contractors, employed by Emergency Pipelines, Inc., a government subsidiary, started into Pickaway county north of New Holland. The line crossed Route 56 at Pherson and Route 23 just north of Little Walnut creek at the Cromley farm.

The line was built from Longview to Norris City, Ill., thence eastward. Oil is already being forced into the pipeline at Longview.

"Can anyone doubt that it would be far easier to reach that essential common agreement on the practical measures required to carry out these great principles of the Atlantic Charter during these months in which the United Nations are joined together in the common struggle than if the search for that agreement be postponed until after the war is won?"

Funeral services will be conducted Monday at 9 a. m. in St. Joseph's Catholic church, the Rev. Fr. Edward J. Reidy officiating, for Peter J. Connor, 57, who died Wednesday night in McLeansboro, Ill. Burial will be in St. Joseph's Catholic cemetery by L. M. Mader.

Mr. Connor was a native of Jackson township, born May 16, 1885, a son of Thomas and Mary Ann Mogan Connor. He was an employee of the Texas Oil company at the time of his death.

Friends may call at the home of his sister, Miss Mary Connor, 122 Pinckney street, Saturday evening and Sunday.

NATIONAL DRAFT PERCENT HOLDS GOOD LOCALLY

Pickaway county is supplying men for the armed forces in exactly the same proportion as its total number of Selective Service registrants rates to the national total. Figures showing the percentages of men in service were announced Friday by the Office of War Information.

Ohio has 5.18 percent of the nation's registrants and the same percentage of men in service, according to the OWI. Pickaway county percentages of men registered and men in arms runs proportionately.

New York with 10.48 percent of the total registrants is now providing 10.93 percent of all men in the armed forces.

Only in nine states does the percentage of men in service as of last April 1 vary as much as one-fifth of one percent of the population, OWI said.

In Pickaway county there are a few more than 1,400 men in all branches of service at the present time. The county's population is figured at approximately 28,000.

GIVING FALSE CLUE TO SHERIFF LEADS TO JAIL

Charles Fred, 28-year-old Yellowbud man, was under arrest in Circleville jail Friday for giving false information to police and sheriff's deputies, and causing them to go on a "wild goose" chase Thursday night into the extreme northern end of Pickaway county. Fred told Chief William F. McCrady that he knew exactly where Nannie Bates Fowler, 26, wanted for murder of her husband, Guy Fowler, in Columbus, was hiding.

Chief McCrady told Deputies Bryan Custer and Vern Pontious, and an "expedition" to a point beyond Commercial Point was started. The officers and the Yellowbud man went over mud roads, through fields, and about everywhere else, McCrady said, until they found the house in which Fred said Mrs. Fowler was living the day before.

McCrady said that the house was vacant and that no evidence could be found that anyone had been there in the last several months.

The chief lodged the Yellowbud man in jail on a false information charge.

Local authorities have investigated many false clues concerning the Fowler woman, this being the first arrest for providing false information.

RED SKELTON DIVORCED IN FRIENDLY SUIT

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 12.—Funnyman Richard (Red) Skelton and Emma Marie Skelton were right back today where they started 11 years ago—a couple of good friends, one writing gags and the other cracking them for radio and film audiences.

Divorced yesterday in a "friendly" and uncontested suit, the couple walked out of Superior Court arm in arm. The comedian waited in the wings while his estranged wife listed technical cruelty charges.

"Mr. Skelton," she told the judge, "reversed the usual order of behavior for men. Most men leave home early and come home late. He went out late and came home early—in the morning."

Mrs. Skelton will remain his chief gag writer and business manager—a job she took shortly after they first met in Kansas City, Mo., when she was a theatre usherette. They married shortly afterward.

non-interventionists. These Democrats are ready to bolt him and support the Republican nominee, if the latter's international plans are preferable to Mr. Roosevelt's. But if the GOP nominee stands beside Mr. Roosevelt on international issues, the Democratic non-interventionists are ready to support a third party nominee or launch a third party of their own.

Sen. Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, gave notice of these plans the other day when he announced he would bolt the Democratic party if its 1944 nominee were "not satisfactory." And he startled leaders of both parties by declaring former President Herbert Hoover would be the strongest candidate the Republicans could nominate. It is significant that Mr. Hoover has been critical recently of Mr. Roosevelt's policies for the postwar world.

Farley Active

Meanwhile, James A. Farley, who bolted Mr. Roosevelt on the third term issue in 1940 after leading his first two victory campaigns, is stalking through the background with plans of his own. Farley recently visited Governor Sam H. Jones, of Louisiana, and former Governor Frank M. Dixon, of Alabama. Shortly afterwards, Jones proposed a new anti-New Deal party to be called constitutional Democrats; Dixon demanded that Mr. Roosevelt immediately renounce fourth term ambitions.

There is a curious anomaly in Democratic and Republican viewpoints about 1944. Many Democratic leaders speak of a crushing party defeat next year. Many Republican leaders express fear that Mr. Roosevelt cannot be defeated; they frankly fear his campaign magic. If you wish to hear talk of victory, go to the other fellow's camp.

BRONCS MADE TO RIDE, NOT EAT, COWHANDS SAY

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Feb. 12.—The horse has played an important part in the development of the west, directors of the Montana Cowboys Association declared today in condemning the movement to slaughter horses for human consumption.

They drafted a resolution to be presented to the association's annual reunion in Great Falls February 27. The practice, they asserted, was "next to barbarism."

CHILDREN SEEK TO PLAY REAL PART IN WAR

Circleville school children, who are already doing a yeoman job for Uncle Sam by buying War Bonds and Stamps as fast as they can, are seeking an opportunity to really make a contribution to the war effort.

Miss Florence Hoffman, Corwin street principal, contacted Earl A. Smith, county War Bond and Stamp chairman, Friday, asking him to find out what piece of equipment the youngsters could provide through their purchase of War Bonds and Stamps.

Smith immediately wired Ohio War Savings committee officials to learn prices of field guns, tanks, jeeps, and other equipment.

Miss Hoffman said the children of her school wish to do something tangible for the war effort, believing that their purchases may be speeded if they know they are buying some particular piece of equipment.

In many cities and towns of the nation pieces of vital war equipment have been bought through Bond and Stamp purchases, widespread publicity being given to the efforts of the boys and girls.

Smith expects an answer within a few days with the amount of Bonds and Stamps necessary to finance purchase of any particular piece of equipment outlined for him. He will pass whatever information he receives to Miss Hoffman and she to the youngsters of the school who will make their own decision concerning the amount of money they believe they can raise.

ROOSEVELT TO DISCUSS WAR IN RADIO TALK

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—President Roosevelt tonight will make a nationwide 20-minute "fireside chat" beginning at 9:30 p. m. e. w. t.

According to the White House Mr. Roosevelt's talk will range from the historic Casablanca conference with Prime Minister Churchill to domestic issues and observance of Lincoln's birthday. Mr. Roosevelt will also speak on February 22, addressing the George Washington Day dinners, which will be held throughout the country under the auspices of the Democratic party.

can victory marked the conclusion of the first major U. S. offensive of World War II.

Under the strategy intimated by Knox Guadalcanal will be used as one of the key bases from which American forces will fan out against enemy installations now barring the way to Japan.

The secretary stressed the fact that naval policy never called for seizure of one island after another in a slow drive toward the enemy mainland. He explained that the popular conception of an "island to island campaign" was erroneous.

As Knox interpreted the American strategy islands will be used in the progress toward Japan but he intimated that attacks will be made only against key bases now held by the Japanese.

At present American efforts are concentrated on neutralizing the Japanese base at Munda, only 180 miles northwest of Guadalcanal. If American planes do not succeed in smashing this base, it may be necessary for U. S. forces to invade and seize this strategic central Solomons area.

QUIET OBSERVANCE OF LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

Circleville's observance of Lincoln's birthday was a quiet one, no public affairs being conducted in honor of the great emancipator. Schools continued classes as usual, with some classes hearing talks on the famed President and others conducted entertainments.

OPEN LETTERS

TO ALL OF US

CITIZENS: Beginning February 21, it is quite likely that we will be told to turn back our clocks by one hour to conform with changes made by the Ohio legislature during the last week. To nearly every one in the rural area the change is most welcome, because most of the opposition against the Eastern War Time program has come from rural Ohio. The system just didn't seem right on the farm. Ministers had to change the hours of Sunday school so more children could attend. Public school opening hours were changed so children would have not have to go to school in the dark. On the other hand many persons liked the War Time plan because it gave them more time in the afternoon and evening in which to carry on other work in addition to their regular jobs. Men were available for work in gardens and around the house. Any change in customary policy has its drawbacks, so there will be many inconveniences by the most recent change in time. However, it will work out in time and before we know it we will be back to normal again. Some confusion is certain to exist, especially with federal employees and trains operating on the War Time schedule, but solutions may be worked out for this, too.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SPORTS LOVERS

COUNTIANS: Annual Pickaway county basketball tournament is scheduled starting next Friday in the Jackson township school, and this is just a note urging persons who will be driving to the tournament to see that not a single automobile goes to Fox unless it is filled to capacity with persons who want to see the games. Neighbors should work out share-the-ride programs so that no car which can be left at home is driven to the scene of the county tournament. Gasoline and tires must be conserved, and by your being careful your gasoline rations and your tires may last just a little longer.

CIRCUITEER.

TO CITIZENS

FRIENDS: "From the White House Lincoln could see the camp-fires of the Confederate army," said Calvin Coolidge. "Compared with this, no President has had real trouble." Washington certainly had some real trouble, but until the present war, at no time except under Lincoln was the life of the nation actually in danger, with the responsibility for keeping it alive fixed on the President. No wonder that under this strain Lincoln aged. But under it he also grew. When the Southern states hesitated over secession in the early months of 1861, Lincoln declined to yield on the Republican platform plank that opposed the extension of slavery to the territories. As the climate of the territories forbade the profitable use of slave-labor, historians are now inclined to think that a concession on this point would have been harmless, and might have saved some slave states to the Union. Later in the war, Lincoln told the militant editor, Horace Greeley, in a famous letter, that whatever he did or forebore to do about slavery, his aim was to help the Union. Even if it were necessary to retain slavery if the Union were to be saved, he stood ready to make this choice. The choice did not become necessary and in the end his policy was justified. He won a complete victory, and when struck down was planning a prudent and healing policy of reconstruction. If any President deserved an untroubled life, it was Lincoln. It is the irony of history that he of all presidents should have been the most harassed. Lack of trouble, however, might have left him in a minor position in his nation's history. His growth under trials give him the deserved first place.

TO ALL PERSONS

FOLK: Wise citizens are working on this income taxes, and the sooner the better. The natural impulse is to put off the unpleasant job as long as possible, and that just means more grief. There is going to be a great shadow falling over this country early next month if 40,000,000 Americans wait until then to learn the bad news and meet the deadline on March 15. It isn't so tough if a fellow tackles it early. With calmness and a reasonable amount of leisure, almost anybody can at least work out the main facts, and have them ready to use on official tax blanks. The main thing is to know how much income was received last year, from whatever sources, and then how much of it is taxable. For the latter, the requirements are not yet clear, because some changes are expected; but it is well to have the available facts in hand. Those who have paid income taxes before will have a basis for figuring. It is wise also, when possible, to assemble similar facts for the first quarter of this year, so as to have them ready for use if required. The citizen who knows what wages or salary or profits he has received has a good start on the job.

CIRCUITEER.

TO NYA ORGANIZATIONS

UNIT: National Youth Administration's value to the nation has been debated pro and con in the halls of congress, in state houses, in newspapers, and on the street corner. It has been praised and condemned, and harassed. But here is just a note congratulating the organization for doing a mighty good job so far as many Circleville and Pickaway county youngsters are concerned. Many of your projects have been tried throughout the land, some with success and some with failure, but the organization you have set up to train boys and girls in special schools for jobs in the war effort has proved highly successful. Many youngsters from this community, boys and girls who were tiring of school or who were out of school and with nothing to do, have gained excellent jobs as a result of training in your various centers. Hardly a week passes that several more do not enroll. NYA is doing a good job.

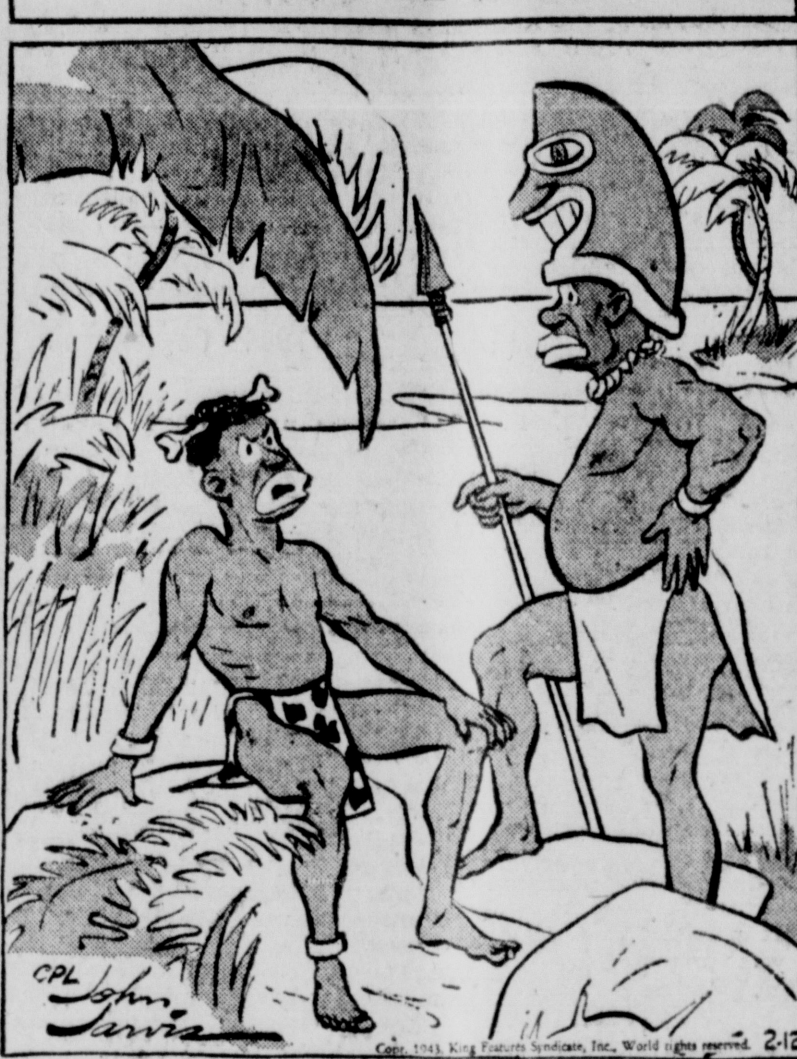

CIRCUITEER.

TO INSTITUTE OFFICERS

SIRS: I am mighty pleased to see so many Farm Institutes being conducted successfully this year in Pickaway county. Success of these meetings speaks well for the interest rural folk are maintaining in such gatherings and in the educational programs conducted there. Every institute has set up a well rounded organization and a diversified program of interest to all. Some institutes were not held this year, because of travel problems and because of other factors, but all communities which have carried on their projects are happy that they did so.

DIET AND HEALTH

Facing the Situation Due to Coffee Shortage

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THIS COLUMN has not interviewed anybody who feels very enthusiastic about either President Roosevelt's or Mayor LaGuardia's Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

method of making coffee. One feels that the forte of these gentlemen is in statecraft rather than in the culinary arts. The only part of coffee ever considered deleterious is the tannic acid and prolonged boiling increases the tannic acid four times, but adds little caffeine. I believe, however, that I can add something constructive to the argument and it goes back to the years when I was a post-graduate medical student in Scotland. I was very fond of Scotland in 1911. I was young—at least younger—and full of enthusiasm, and I enjoyed the clinics of Edwin Bramwell. I also enjoyed the hospitality of McVittie's Guest in Prince's Street and I used to go down every Sunday morning to St. Giles' Cathedral to see the Black Watch on parade. How the sporrans swung: left, right, left, right, with the precision which marks the marching of all Ladies from Hell.

Tea a Substitute

I liked everything about Scotland except the coffee. There is no way to describe Scotch coffee. When I say that Mayor LaGuardia's and President Roosevelt's coffee sounds good in comparison to Scotch coffee, that is only a faint indication of what it is like. The only thing to compare to Scotch coffee is English coffee or French coffee or Italian coffee. When I had been in Scotland a short time, I found out that I had better switch to tea. So I did and can say that I acquired a taste for it and that it is just as good as coffee for breakfast, luncheon or dinner.

I understand that the distribution of tea will be about 50 per cent of what it has been during the last year. Cocoa will be distributed at the rate of about 60 per cent of the amount of last year. Not everybody is going to take my advice, so if a few of you acquire the tea or cocoa habit, you will be able to get over the withdrawal symptoms of coffee in time to enjoy yourselves.

Tea, coffee and cocoa depend for their stimulating effect upon the same chemicals, the xanthines—caffeine and theobromine—which have about an identical action in the body. So it does not make a great deal of difference pharmacologically which of these beverages you use.

Effects of Coffee

I can also give everybody a little deep psychological message on the actual effect of drinking coffee. Most people are so conditioned to it that they get very little physiological reaction from it. Some people think they are doing themselves irreparable harm by using it, but as a matter of fact for people over the age of 40, it probably does a great deal of good to the heart, circulation and nervous system. But most of the effect comes from the smell and a warm comes from the stomach. So I suggest aminophyllin as another of the xanthines: if you take a rag and saturate it with coffee grounds, smell it, pop a grain of aminophyllin in your mouth, and drink a cup of hot water, you will get about the same effect as drinking coffee and it will be much more economical.

Or if you want to duplicate my Scotch experience, take a mixture of one-fourth tea, one-fourth coffee, one-fourth cocoa, bring it to a boil and down two cups. This will make you forget coffee, the President's recipe, Mayor LaGuardia's recipe and everything else for a long, long time.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

N. E. D.: What is pellagra? What is the cause? What is the cure, if any?

Answer: Pellagra is a deficiency disease due to lack of fresh food and reliance for a long time on a salt meat, corn pone, processed foods—such as molasses—sort of diet. It causes scurfiness of the hands and feet and digestive disturbances. It can be cured promptly by the use of nicotinic acid, which is probably the food factor which is deficient in its causation.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

You're Telling Me!

THE CITY of Hamburg, Germany, has been churned up for Air Force planes. This should Air Force planes. This should satisfactorily answer Shakespeare's famed query: "What's in a name?"

Rommel would be an ideal street car passenger. He needs no conductor to urge him to move to the rear.

It may be just a coincidence but we read in the same edition that the United States produced 5,489 warplanes in December and that Prime Minister Tojo wasn't feeling so good.

In observance of the appointment of Crown Prince Umberto to head Italian Russian front forces it was only natural that the Soviets would give them a royal trimming.

Where Contentment Lies

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER NINETEEN

KAY NEEDN'T have worried about what excuse to give Jake for barging unexpectedly into his apartment. He wasn't there. The place was covered with dust, even the piano. The lid hadn't been up for days.

She dismissed the taxi, walked slowly uptown. Something had to be done, but what? Kay often thought afterwards how curious it was that when you were in a jam something always turned up to crystallize your thoughts and make your course clear. Three events banded together, all within a few weeks, and each one had its significance. One alone wouldn't have been sufficient. The three were more than enough.

The first one was connected with the store. A clever New York designer had done some book ends. They were artistic, unusual, and just the sort of thing that went with not too extreme modern furniture. Good book ends were hard to get, the "End of the Trail" and Scotties having practically cornered the market. Kay knew the designer, Sidney Scott, slightly; she'd met her at parties, so when Miss Scott wanted to sell the book ends to McClure's, she came in to see Kay.

"I don't know the ropes. I do know you. I hoped you'd be kind enough to tell me what to do." Sidney was attractive, with a short, wind-blown hair cut, and clear, sharp features.

"The usual procedure is to take them to the buyers' sample room. Miss Illing is the stationery buyer." Kay hesitated, undecided whether to warn Sidney about Miss Illing's nasty manner. No, it wouldn't be fair to either of them.

"She has her buying hours on Tuesday and Friday afternoons, from 2:30 to 4:30 o'clock. You go along then. I'm sure she'll give you an order. They really are lovely. Leave me one or two samples, will you?"

If Laura Illing hadn't been Kay's particular thorn in the flesh, Kay would have called her up to the office and settled the matter then and there. But Miss Illing would have resented the fact that Miss Scott had gone to Kay first. So it was better that she didn't know.

Kay made a memorandum to run a sale on the book ends soon, and then the whole business slipped her mind—until she ran into Sidney Scott at a cocktail party.

"Hello there, how did you make out with Miss Illing?" she asked with curiosity.

Sidney held her hands up in horror. "Terribly! I went in mild as a lamb, said you'd suggested I see her, and she turned me down flat. She said they were too sophisticated, that the market would be limited even in a specialty shop, and that they wouldn't do for her customers at all."

"That's simply ridiculous. I'll Tuesday and Friday afternoons, from 2:30 to 4:30 o'clock. You go along then. I'm sure she'll give you an order. They really are lovely. Leave me one or two samples, will you?"

Words of Wisdom

Today's Horoscope
If your birthday coincides with Abraham Lincoln's use your day thus: During the early dawn several new thoughts may enter your mind, leaving a bright and exhilarating impression. Around 12:36 p. m. stick closely to your friends. Don't trust strangers, and don't make or accept a rash promise. A job begun at 2:42 p. m. could be unusually successful. As the evening progresses, if something speaks to her about it tomorrow, Miss Illing is a clever executive, but her taste is limited. That's all Kay said; but the next day she called Miss Illing up to her office.

"I thought we'd run an ad on those Sidney Scott book ends next week," she said innocently. "Mr. Green said he'd write the copy himself, get us some good cuts. I just wanted to check to be sure the stock was in, and that you have enough to take care of a sale."

Miss Illing looked indignant. "I didn't buy any. We can't sell that type of thing." Her eyes were glaring.

"For once I'm sure you're mistaken," Kay said smoothly. "There will be an article about Miss Scott in the next Home and Grounds, with pictures of several of the book ends. Miss Scott has sold hundreds of pairs since the day she saw you. She's promised to let us have delivery a few days before anyone else so that we can be first with our ad."

Miss Illing interrupted angrily. "The first floor. That's the trouble with you vice presidents. The store used to be a nice place to work in before we had you sticking your noses into our business, buying our goods, thinking you're so darn smart."

Kay was furious, but she held her tongue. "We shall see who's right," Miss Illing. In the meantime, will you please place the order. A good assortment in all colors. I'd like to see the order before it goes out."

She didn't trust Laura. "Miss Scott's friends will buy them if no one else does. She has lots of them."

That was probably a silly dig. Laura was one of the most unpopular women in the store. But one dig more or less couldn't aggravate the situation any more. Laura Illing's fury had already reached the saturation point.

Kay showed the book ends to David, who thought they were stunning. Dick Green went to town on the ad, and it was sensational. Kay saw to it that the book ends had a choice sale table, and when she went down to the stationery department at 9:45 o'clock the morning the ad ran, the assistant buyer gleefully announced that they'd sold 20 pairs already. That was good going.

Kay was out of the store most of the day, because she had to go to a fashion luncheon and the meeting afterward lasted most of the afternoon. At 5:15 o'clock she called Laura Illing.

"Well, how did it go?" she asked. "About as I expected," Laura was crowing. "A waste of a perfectly good sale table."

Kay was astounded. "But Miss Lamb told me you'd sold 20 pairs in 15 minutes," she argued. "That was a marvelous start."

"I guess all Miss Scott's friends must get up early."

Kay hung up. This was too bad. Unfortunate it had to be Laura Illing with whom she had to make a wrong guess. But she relaxed and laughed. A temper in a teapot, anyway. She didn't have the energy to get all upset about it. She was sorry for Sidney Scott's sake. Maybe they'd go better later on.

Kay did think it would be a kind gesture to call Sidney. Her voice as it came over the wire was jubilant. "I guess the sale must have gone well," she said. "Several people have told me they couldn't buy one they wanted."

"This was interesting," Kay thought, and obviously a matter for a little digging into. But store politics weren't any concern of an outsider. She cautiously asked, "Did they mention any special kind or color that they couldn't get?"

"Actually, they did. Marcia wanted the white angel heads, Connie the yellow sun ones, Jack the black panthers. Oh, this is a boring recital, and I'm sure it is nobody's fault."

"Yes, those things do happen," Kay explained. "I'm glad you're so pleased."

It was more than Kay was. Miss Illing was ordered up. She arrived looking dejected.

"Miss Illing, I want the truth about the book end sale," Kay said. "Your stock bins are well supplied, I saw them myself. Yet I hear there were customers who couldn't purchase some of the numbers."

An angry flush reddened Laura Illing's heavy face. "Sometimes the boys are slow about getting the stock upstairs."

"They usually wait for requisition slips. This time there weren't any," Kay had her. It was embarrassing to catch anyone in such a stupid and short-sighted act. Kay felt disgusted.

"I hardly need say, Miss Illing, that such a deliberate trick is detrimental not only to the store, but to your own position in it."

"What trick?" David asked, walking in. Both women had been too upset to hear him coming.

Kay's immediate impulse was to shield Laura. She could be sure that Laura's version of the story would be largely tinged with hints of favoritism.

"Nothing important enough to bother you with, Mr. Banning," she said, trying to smile. Unfortunately, David knew her too well.

"Out with it," he ordered. "This Illing business might as well be settled once and for all, she decided. "Miss Illing withheld Miss Scott's book ends from sale when they had been advertised. She waited with some trepidation to see how David would take the news."

"Is this true, Miss Illing?" he asked, his voice controlled, his eyes blazing.

"Yes, it is. Nobody would blame me. Miss Stevens here telling me what to buy, how to run my department." Her tone was nasty, her forehead blotched with rage.

Kay had never seen David really angry before. The thought of what he might do now terrified her.

Miss Illing looked indignant. "I didn't buy any. We can't sell that type of thing." Her eyes were glaring.

"For once I'm sure you're mistaken," Kay said smoothly. "There will be an article about Miss Scott in the next Home and Grounds, with pictures of several of the book ends. Miss Scott has sold hundreds of pairs since the day she saw you. She's promised to let us have delivery a few days before anyone else so that we can be first with our ad."

Miss Illing interrupted angrily. "The first floor. That's the trouble with you vice presidents. The store used to be a nice place to work in before we had you sticking your noses into our business, buying our goods, thinking you're so darn smart."

Kay was furious, but she held her tongue. "We shall see who's right," Miss Illing. In the meantime, will you please place the order. A good assortment in all colors. I'd like to see the order before it goes out."

She didn't trust Laura. "Miss Scott's friends will buy them if no one else does. She has lots of them."

That was probably a silly dig. Laura was one of the most unpopular women in the store. But one dig more or less couldn't aggravate the situation any more. Laura Illing's fury had already reached the saturation point.

Kay showed the book ends to David, who thought they were stunning. Dick Green went to town on the ad, and it was sensational. Kay saw to it that the book ends had a choice sale table, and when she went down to the stationery department at 9:45 o'clock the morning the ad ran, the assistant buyer gleefully announced that they'd sold 20 pairs already. That was good going.

Kay was out of the store most of the day, because she had to go to a fashion luncheon and the meeting afterward lasted most of the afternoon. At 5:15 o'clock she called Laura Illing.

"Well, how did it go?" she asked. "About as I expected," Laura was crowing. "A waste of a perfectly good sale table."

Kay was astounded. "But Miss Lamb told me you'd sold 20 pairs in 15 minutes," she argued. "That was a marvelous start."

"I guess all Miss Scott's friends must get up early."

Kay hung up. This was too bad. Unfortunate it had to be Laura Illing with whom she had to make

OPEN LETTERS

TO ALL OF US

CITIZENS: Beginning February 21, it is quite likely that we will be told to turn back our clocks by one hour to conform with changes made by the Ohio legislature during the last week. To nearly every one in the rural area the change is most welcome, because most of the opposition against the Eastern War Time program has come from rural Ohio. The system just didn't seem right on the farm. Ministers had to change the hours of Sunday school so more children could attend. Public school opening hours were changed so children would have not have to go to school in the dark. On the other hand many persons liked the War Time plan because it gave them more time in the afternoon and evening in which to carry on other work in addition to their regular jobs. Men were available for work in gardens and around the house. Any change in customary policy has its drawbacks, so there will be many inconveniences by the most recent change in time. However, it will work out in time and before we know it we will be back to normal again. Some confusion is certain to exist, especially with federal employees and trains operating on the War Time schedule, but solutions may be worked out for this, too.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SPORTS LOVERS

COUNTIANS: Annual Pickaway county basketball tournament is scheduled starting next Friday in the Jackson township school, and this is just a note urging persons who will be driving to the tournament to see that not a single automobile goes to Fox unless it is filled to capacity with persons who want to see the games. Neighbors should work out share-the-ride programs so that no car which can be left at home is driven to the scene of the county tournament. Gasoline and tires must be conserved, and by your being careful your gasoline rations and your tires may last just a little longer.

CIRCUITEER.

TO CITIZENS

FRRIENDS: "From the White House Lincoln could see the camp-fires of the Confederate army," said Calvin Coolidge. "Compared with this, no President has had real trouble." Washington certainly had some real trouble, but until the present war, at no time except under Lincoln was the life of the nation actually in danger, with the responsibility for keeping it alive fixed on the President. No wonder that under this strain Lincoln aged. But under it he also grew. When the Southern states hesitated over secession in the early months of 1861, Lincoln declined to yield on the Republican platform plank that opposed the extension of slavery to the territories. As the climate of the territories forbade the profitable use of slave-labor, historians are now inclined to think that a concession on this point would have been harmless, and might have saved some slave states to the Union. Later in the war, Lincoln told the militant editor, Horace Greeley, in a famous letter, that whatever he did or forebore to do about slavery, his aim was to help the Union. Even if it were necessary to retain slavery if the Union were to be saved, he stood ready to make this choice. The choice did not become necessary and in the end his policy was justified. He won a complete victory, and when struck down was planning a prudent and healing policy of reconstruction. If any President deserved an untroubled life, it was Lincoln. It is the irony of history that he of all presidents should have been the most harassed. Lack of trouble, however, might have left him in a minor position in his nation's history. His growth under trials give him the deserved first place.

TO ALL PERSONS

FOLK: Wise citizens are working on this income taxes, and the sooner the better. The natural impulse is to put off the unpleasant job as long as possible, and that just means more grief. There is going to be a great shadow falling over this country early next month if 40,000,000 Americans wait until then to learn the bad news and meet the deadline on March 15. It isn't so tough if a fellow tackles it early. With calmness and a reasonable amount of leisure, almost anybody can at least work out the main facts, and have them ready to use on official tax blanks. The main thing is to know how much income was received last year, from whatever sources, and then how much of it is taxable. For the latter, the requirements are not yet clear, because some changes are expected; but it is well to have the available facts in hand. Those who have paid income taxes before will have a basis for figuring. It is wise also, when possible, to assemble similar facts for the first quarter of this year, so as to have them ready for use if required. The citizen who knows what wages or salary or profits he has received has a good start on the job.

CIRCUITEER.

TO NYA ORGANIZATIONS

UNIT: National Youth Administration's value to the nation has been debated pro and con in the halls of congress, in state houses, in newspapers, and on the street corner. It has been praised and condemned, and harassed. But here is just a note congratulating the organization for doing a mighty good job so far as many Circleville and Pickaway county youngsters are concerned. Many of your projects have been tried throughout the land, some with success and some with failure, but the organization you have set up to train boys and girls in special schools for jobs in the war effort has proved highly successful. Many youngsters from this community, boys and girls who were tiring of school or who were out of school and with nothing to do, have gained excellent jobs as a result of training in your various centers. Hardly a week passes that several more do not enroll. NYA is doing a good job.

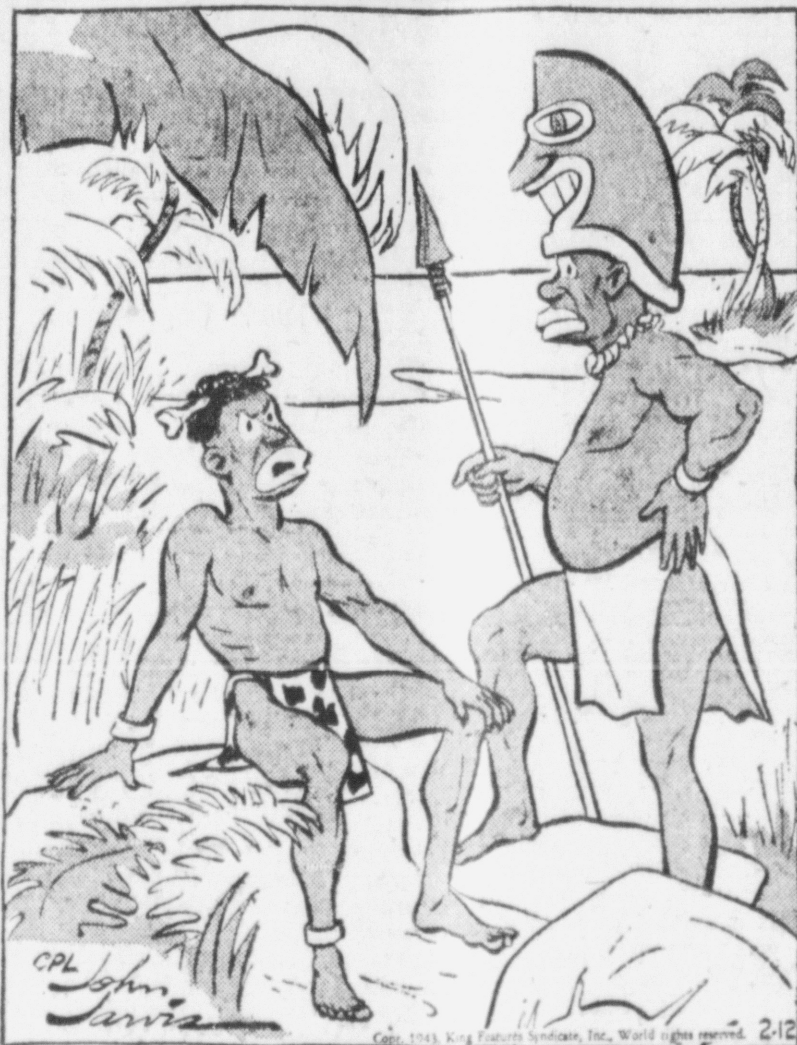

CIRCUITEER.

TO INSTITUTE OFFICERS

SIRS: I am mighty pleased to see so many Farm Institutes being conducted successfully this year in Pickaway county. Success of these meetings speaks well for the interest rural folk are maintaining in such gatherings and in the educational programs conducted there. Every institute has set up a well rounded organization and a diversified program of interest to all. Some institutes were not held this year, because of travel problems and because of other factors, but all communities which have carried on their projects are happy that they did so.

Facing the Situation Due to Coffee Shortage

method of making coffee. One feels that the forte of these gentlemen is in statistics rather than in the culinary arts. The only part of coffee ever considered deleterious is the tannic acid and prolonged boiling increases the tannic acid four times, but adds little caffeine. I believe, however, that I can add something constructive to the argument and it goes back to the years when I was a post-graduate medical student in Scotland. I was very fond of Scotland in 1911. I was young—at least younger—and full of enthusiasm, and I enjoyed the clinics of Edwin Bramwell. I also enjoyed the hospitality of McVittie's Guest in Prince's Street and I used to go down every Sunday morning to St. Giles' Cathedral to see the Black Watch on parade. How the sporrans swung: left, right, left, right, with the precision which marks the marching of all Ladies from Hell.

Ten a Substitute

I liked everything about Scotland except the coffee. There is no way to describe Scotch coffee. When I say that Mayor LaGuardia's and President Roosevelt's coffee sounds good in comparison to Scotch coffee, that is only a faint indication of what it is like. The only thing to compare to Scotch coffee is English coffee or French coffee or Italian coffee. When I had been in Scotland a short time, I found out that I had better switch to tea. So I did and I can say that I acquired a taste for it and that it is just as good as coffee for breakfast, luncheon or dinner.

I understand that the distribution of tea will be about 50 per cent of what it has been during the last year. Cocoa will be distributed at the rate of about 60 per cent of the amount of last year. Not everybody is going to take my advice, so if a few of you acquire the tea or cocoa habit, you will be able to get over the withdrawal symptoms of coffee in time to enjoy yourselves.

Tea, coffee and cocoa depend for their stimulating effect upon the same chemicals, the xanthines—caffeine and theobromine—which have about an identical action in the body. So it does not make a great deal of difference pharmacologically which of these beverages you use.

Effects of Coffee

I can also give everybody a little deep psychological message on the actual effect of drinking coffee. Most people are so conditioned to it that they get very little physiological reaction from it. Some people think they are doing themselves irreparable harm by using it, but as a matter of fact for people over the age of 40, it probably does a great deal of good to the heart, circulation and nervous system. But most of the effect comes from the smell and a warm fluid in the stomach. So I suggest aminophyllin as another of the xanthines: if you take a rag and saturate it with coffee grounds, smell it, pop a grain of aminophyllin in your mouth, and drink a cup of hot water, you will get about the same effect as drinking coffee and it will be much more economical.

Or if you want to duplicate my Scotch experience, take a mixture of one-fourth tea, one-fourth coffee, one-fourth cocoa and one-fourth coca-cola, bring it to a boil and down two cups. This will make you forget coffee, the President's recipe, Mayor LaGuardia's recipe and everything else for a long, long time.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

N. E. D.: What is pellagra? What is the cause? What is the cure, if any?

Answer: Pellagra is a deficiency disease due to lack of fresh food and reliance for a long time on a salt meat, corn pone, processed foods—such as molasses—sort of diet. It causes scurfiness of the hands and feet and digestive disturbances. It can be cured promptly by the use of nicotinic acid, which is probably the food factor which is deficient in its causation.

THE CITY of Hamburg, Germany, has been churned up for Air Force planes. This should satisfactorily answer Shakespeare's famed query: "What's in a name?"

Rommel would be an ideal street car passenger. He needs no conductor to urge him to move to the rear.

It may be just a coincidence but we read in the same edition that the United States produced 5,489 warplanes in December and that Prime Minister Tojo wasn't feeling so good.

In observance of the appointment of Crown Prince Umberto to head Italian Russian front forces it was only natural that the Soviets would give them a royal trimming.

Dining out, we're told, is a help to the morale—especially of that member of the family whose job it is to do the dishes.

"They can't faze me," snarled Shickelgruber. "I can create field marshals faster than the Soviets can kill or capture 'em!"

CHAPTER NINETEEN

KAY NEEDN'T have worried about what excuse to give Jake for barging unexpectedly into his apartment. He wasn't there. The place was covered with dust, even the piano. The lid hadn't been up for days.

She dismissed the taxi, walked slowly uptown. Something had to be done, but what? Kay often thought afterwards how curious it was that when you were in a jam something always turned up to crystallize your thoughts and make your course clear. Three events banded together, all within a few weeks, and each one had its significance. One alone wouldn't have been sufficient. The three were more than enough.

The first one was connected with the store. A clever New York designer had done some book ends. They were artistic, unusual, and just the sort of thing that went with not too extreme modern furniture. Good book ends were hard to get, the "End of the Trail" and Scotties having practically cornered the market. Kay knew the designer, Sidney Scott, slightly; she'd met her at parties, so when Miss Scott wanted to sell the book ends to McClure's, she came in to see Kay.

"I don't know the ropes. I do know you. I hoped you'd be kind enough to tell me what to do." Sidney was attractive, with a short, wind-blown hair cut, and clear, sharp features.

"The usual procedure is to take them to the buyers' sample room. Miss Iling is the stationery buyer." Kay hesitated, undecided whether to warn Sidney about Miss Iling's nasty manner. No, it wouldn't be fair to either of them.

"She has her buying hours on Tuesday and Friday afternoons, from 2:30 to 4:30 o'clock. You go along then. I'm sure she'll give you an order. They really are lovely. Leave me one or two samples, will you?"

If Laura Iling hadn't been Kay's particular thorn in the flesh, Kay would have called her up to the office and settled the matter then and there. But Miss Iling would have resented the fact that Miss Scott had gone to Kay first. So it was better that she didn't know.

Kay made a memorandum to run a sale on the book ends soon, and then the whole business slipped her mind—until she ran into Sidney Scott at a cocktail party.

"Hello there, how did you make out with Miss Iling?" she asked with curiosity. Sidney held her hands up in horror. "Terrible! I went in mild as a lamb, said you'd suggested I see her, and she turned me down flat. She said they were too sophisticated, that the market would be limited even in a specialty shop, and that they wouldn't do for her customers at all."

"That's simply ridiculous. I'll speak to her about it tomorrow. Miss Iling is a clever executive, but her taste is limited." That's all Kay said; but the next day she called Miss Iling up to her office.

"I thought you'd run an ad on those Sidney Scott book ends next week," she said innocently. "Mr. Green said he'd write the copy himself, get us some good cuts. I just wanted to check to be sure the stock was in, and that you have enough to take care of a sale."

Miss Iling looked indignant. "I didn't buy any. We can't sell that type of thing." Her eyes were glaring.

"For once I'm sure you're mistaken," Kay said smoothly. "There will be an article about Miss Scott in the next Home and Grounds, with pictures of several of the book ends. Miss Scott has sold hundreds of pairs since the day she saw you. She's promised to let us have delivery a few days before anyone else so that we can be first with our ad."

Miss Iling interrupted angrily. "The first fools. That's the trouble with you vice presidents. The store used to be a nice place to work in before we had you sticking your noses into our business, buying our goods, thinking you're so darn smart."

Kay was furious, but she held her tongue. "We shall see who's right, Miss Iling. In the meantime, will you please place the order. A good assortment in all colors. I'd like to see the order before it goes out." She didn't trust Laura. "Miss Scott's friends will buy them if no one else does. She has lots of them."

That was probably a silly dig. Laura was one of the most unpopular women in the store. But one dig more or less couldn't aggravate the situation any more. Laura Iling's fury had already reached the saturation point.

Kay showed the book ends to David, who thought they were stunning. Dick Green went to town on the ad, and it was sensational. Kay saw to it that the book ends had a choice sale table, and when she went down to the stationery department at 9:45 o'clock the morning the ad ran, the assistant buyer gleefully announced that they'd sold 20 pairs already. That was good going.

Kay was out of the store most of the day, because she had to go to a fashion luncheon and the meeting afterward lasted most of the afternoon. At 5:15 o'clock she called Laura Iling.

"Well, how did it go?" she asked. "About as I expected." Laura was crowing. "A waste of a perfectly good sale table."

Kay was astounded. "But Miss Lamb told me you'd sold 20 pairs in 15 minutes," she argued.

"I guess all Miss Scott's friends must get up early."

Kay hung up. This was too bad. Unfortunate it had to be Laura Iling with whom she had to make a wrong guess. But she relaxed and laughed. A tempest in a teapot, anyway. She didn't have the energy to get all upset about it. She was sorry for Sidney Scott's sake. Maybe they'd go better later on.

Kay did think it would be a kind gesture to call Sidney. Her voice as it came over the wire was jubilant. "I guess the sale must have gone well," she said. "Several people have told me they couldn't buy one they wanted."

This was interesting. Kay thought, and obviously a matter for a little digging into. But store politics weren't any concern of an outsider. She cautiously asked, "Did they mention any special kind or color that they couldn't get?"

"Actually, they did. Marcia wanted the white angel heads, Connie the yellow sun ones, Jack the black panthers. Oh, this is a boring recital, and I'm sure it is nobody's fault."

"Yes, those things do happen," Kay explained. "I'm glad you're so pleased."

It was more than Kay was. Miss Iling was ordered up. She arrived looking defiant.

"Miss Iling, I want the truth about the book end sale," Kay said. "Your stock bins are well supplied. I saw them myself. Yet I hear there were customers who couldn't purchase some of the numbers."

An angry flush reddened Laura Iling's heavy face. "Sometimes the boys are slow about getting the stock upstairs."

"They usually wait for requisition slips. This time there weren't any," Kay had her. It was embarrassing to catch anyone in such a stupid and short-sighted act. Kay felt disgusted.

"I hardly need say, Miss Iling, that such a deliberate trick is detrimental not only to the store, but to your own position in it."

Kay's immediate impulse was to shield Laura. She could be sure that Laura's version of the story would be largely tinged with hints of favoritism.

"Nothing important enough to bother you with, Mr. Banning," she said, trying to smile. Unfortunately, David knew her too well.

"Out with it," he ordered. This Iling business might as well be settled once and for all, she decided. "Miss Iling withheld Miss Scott's book ends from sale when they had been advertised."

She waited with some trepidation to see how David would take the news.

"Is this true, Miss Iling?" he asked, his voice controlled, his eyes blazing.

"Yes it is. Nobody would blame me. Miss Stevens here telling me what to buy, how to run my department. Her tone was nasty, her forehead blotched with rage."

Kay had never seen David really angry before. The thought of what he might do now terrified her.

Central Press Columnist

● CHAIRMAN MARTIN DIES of the congressional committee on investigation of un-American activities, by various sorts of revolutionaries in this country, seems to have convinced his fellow lawmakers pretty generally since he launched his quiz several years ago. The inquiry was voted, as a matter of politeness to the Texas legislator, who sponsored the idea, and whose feelings naturally would have been hurt if it had been treated contemptuously.

However, few of his associates believed, at that juncture, that enough un-Americanism was abroad in the land to amount to anything, scarcely. That there were a handful of its missionaries abroad in the land was recognized, but hardly anyone thought that they were making an appreciable number of converts. The verdict was that, if they did become at all troublesome, deportation would dispose of them quite adequately.

Nevertheless, Dies got his committee.

It was a good deal laughed at in the beginning. Fascists and Nazis were still consolidating their control of their home countries in that period. They did not appear to be a serious menace on this side of the Atlantic, nor was there any worrying concerning the Japs, on their shore of the Pacific. Still, Martin kept plugging away. His committee required rejuvenation every so often and he got two or three such extensions, again to the accompaniment of considerable amusement.

Nazism and Fascism were developing by that time, but they had not yet reached the war stage, and Martin had to rely largely upon Communism for his main appeal.

Now, Communism was not widely regarded as any particular threat in the United States, to begin with. It isn't Socialism, which we are traditionally afraid of, but a weird doctrine that we do not regard ourselves as sufficiently subject to, to take root here. Socialism (supposedly a couple of different forms of the same) we had assessed and did not like its appearance.

Accordingly, when Congressman Dies sounded his latest alarm, on a Socialistic character, he got himself listened to with plenty of attention.

It is a nuisance that his campaign involves, on a Communistic basis, the cause of Josef Stalin, the Russian leader, who is fighting on our side today, so that the Dies folk have to be very discreet how they express themselves concerning Moscow's philosophy.

Nevertheless, Martin was anything but laughed at the other day, when he reported on un-American activities and asked for authority to continue investigating them.

Contrariwise, he was roundly applauded. Many interviews have honored him cordially. He got another extension vote for his committee in short order.

It was not altogether an administrative victory. The Texas' story is that administrative bureaus have been stuffed with totalitarian personnel. The story is that totalitarians have oozed in wholesale.

This inward oozing, if any, has not been of alien conspirators. It must consist principally of American totalitarian sympathizers. Have we got as many of them as Congressman Dies says we have?

If we have, they do not count for so much right now. It is their post-war influence which would signify.

Dies' forecast is that these theoretical temporary official authorities will slip over into subsequent peacetimes—that they will boss us permanently.

And a lot of his fellow congressmen are suspicious, with him. Among other things, the Texas charges a plan to smother the press—and keep it smothered.

"I am" probes now getting applause

Sarah Jacqueline Hedges Married at Columbus

Local Friends At Ceremony In Parsonage

Circleville friends of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hedges of 816 South 22nd street, Columbus, will be interested in the announcement of the marriage of their daughter, Sarah Jacqueline, to Private First Class Eros Thompson, son of J. F. Thompson of Columbus and the late Mrs. Thompson. The two exchanged their nuptial vows Thursday at 7:30 p. m. in the parsonage of the Grace Lutheran church, Oakwood avenue, where 24 years ago Mr. and Mrs. Hedges, parents of the bride, were married. Dr. Robert E. Golliday, who had officiated at that ceremony, read the single ring service for Miss Hedges and P. (f. c.) Thompson, in the presence of 12 close relatives. Among guests at the quiet service and following reception were Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Hedges, Mr. and Mrs. James P. Moffitt, Mrs. Tom Hedges, Mrs. Alice Moeller, Miss Laura and Miss Emma Mader, Miss Mary Heffner and Miss Florence Dunton of Circleville.

The bride was attractively gowned in an early Spring outfit of navy blue. Her beautifully fashioned costume suit was complemented with a white blouse and white accessories and her smart sailor hat was of navy blue straw. Pinned at her shoulder was a corsage of white rose buds. For something old, Miss Hedges wore her grandmother's cameo engagement ring. Miss Betty Pissell of East Mound street, a cousin of the bride, wore a lovely tailored suit of soldier blue as she served as bridesmaid. Tallman roses formed her shoulder corsage. John Benton Hedges, brother of the bride, served as best man for P. (f. c.) Thompson.

About 25 guests were entertained at a reception at the Hedges home, Mrs. Hedges receiving in a lovely gown of rose lace. Spring flowers in varied arrangements made the rooms a colorful setting for the affair. Silver wedding bells topped the prettier wedding cake that centered the beautifully appointed refreshment table in the dining room. Tall candles burned in antique crystal holders and silver coffee and tea services were at the end of the table. Mrs. B. T. Hedges served the wedding cake after the bride and bridegroom had cut the first slice. Miss Pissell poured.

Conforming to a quaint old custom, a good luck candle burned in tall silver candlestick throughout the evening. The former Miss Hedges is a graduate of the Office Training school where she completed a secretarial course. She is an office employee of the Fred Schmidt Packing company. The bridegroom was employed at the Curtiss-Wright company, Columbus, after he completed his course in industrial engineering at Ohio State university. He is now stationed at Fort Hayes.

Married Couples' Class
The initial social meeting of the Married Couples' class of Trinity Lutheran church was held Thursday in the parish house, with 47 present for the affair. A covered dish dinner was served at 7:30 p. m. with arrangements in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Martin, Mrs. Carl Leist, Mr. and Mrs. Luther List.

Mr. and Mrs. Roderick List, who were married recently, were honored guests at the dinner. Entertainment was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Gladden Troutman, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hammel and Carl C. Leist. The program included a truth or consequence period; shadow box operation stunt; patriotic spelling contest; humorous readings and music. Carl Leist was named to serve as president; Fritz Sieverts, secretary, and Mrs. Charles Walters, treasurer. It was decided to hold meetings the last Thursday of each month. Mrs. Walters and Mrs. Donald Wolf were named as a contact committee for the group. The Rev. George L. Troutman and Mr. Leist were made co-teachers of the class. The next social session will be March 25.

Business Women's Club
Business and Professional Women's club enjoyed an excellent dinner Thursday at the Chicken Inn, 19 being served at tables decorated in pink and white and centered with bowls of pink and white flowers. Pink and white candles were at each end of the table, and favors of small lacy valentines at each cover. Miss Frances Barnes, vice president, conducted the business session in the club room, Masonic temple, during which an invitation was read from the Logan club to attend its Founders' Day meeting on February 21. A letter from Olive H. Huston, state president of the Ohio Federation, announced a state board meeting in Columbus on February 13, the speaker to be Mrs. C. C. Shively, president of the State League of Women Voters. Mrs. Anna Chandler read an interesting article on the subject of "Valentines," and traced their origin from the beginning to the present day.

The meeting was turned over to Miss Besse Gordon and Miss Florence Brown who directed the club members in a treasure hunt for valentines, the prize going to Mrs. Paul Kirwin. In a game of hearts, Mrs. Ralph Roby won first prize. Miss Minnie Palm was awarded first prize for making the prettiest valentine.

Plans were made for a card party which the club will sponsor Thursday, February 18. Mrs. Kirwin is in charge of ticket sales.

Five Points W. C. T. U.

Five Points W. C. T. U. held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Herman Porter February 10. The meeting opened with group singing of "America the Beautiful" and the devotional service conducted by Mrs. Mary Stoor. Included scripture reading from Isaiah 28 and the Lord's prayer. An invitation from the Williamsport Union was accepted to join them for a group institute on March 18.

Some interesting literature was read by members of the organization and the meeting closed with group singing. Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Porter assisted by Mrs. Charles Hoeler and Mrs. Elwin Knapp of the February division.

Real Folks' Club

Nine members of the Real Folks' club were entertained Thursday at the home of Mrs. Grace Wentworth, West Union street. The afternoon was passed in contests and sewing. Mrs. Wentworth interested the group with a reading, "Abraham Lincoln."

The hostess served a delicious lunch at the close of the meeting. The next session will be at the home of Mrs. I. B. Weiler, West street.

Tuxis Club

Plans for the dance to be February 19 in St. Joseph's recreation center were completed Thursday at the meeting of the Tuxis club in the social room of the Presbyterian church. Miss Betty Moeller was in the chair and appointed Charles Will as chairman of the invitations for the invitational dance. Miss Moeller will be in charge of the tickets for the affair which will be at 10 p. m. following the basketball game between Circleville high school and the McClain high school of Greenfield. Coca Cola sales at the dance will be in charge of John Eveland and Dudley Coffland.

The committee announced for the next regular meeting, February 25, will include Mary Ellen Root, James Morehead, Carolyn Herrmann and Dudley Smallwood. The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey led the discussion of the evening's topic, "Has Our Life Any Meaning?"

After a social hour, eats were served by Amanda Cayce, Donagan Howell, Martha Hulise and Elizabeth Downing.

Ashville Garden Club

Mrs. Martin Cromley, Mrs. J. B. Cromley and Miss Wilma Jean Whitehead were guests in addition to 18 club members when Mrs. L. C. Schiff entertained the Ashville Garden club Thursday at her home.

The delightful program included a group of piano selections by Mrs. Eugene Borror who played "La Lison Jera" by Chaminade and "Terpsichore", by Huerter. Very interesting papers were presented. Mrs. William Cromley read an instructive paper on "Fruit and Nut Trees"; Mrs. Wright Noecker, "Growing Herbs for Home Use"; Mrs. Isaac Millar, "The Home Vegetable Garden"; piano selections, "Fingals Cave", Mendelssohn, and "Birdling", Grieg. Mrs. Martin Cromley; vocal solo, "Because of You", Mrs. Walter Hedger with Mrs. Borror at the piano.

Married Couples' Class
The initial social meeting of the Married Couples' class of Trinity Lutheran church was held Thursday in the parish house, with 47 present for the affair. A covered dish dinner was served at 7:30 p. m. with arrangements in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Martin, Mrs. Carl Leist, Mr. and Mrs. Luther List.

Mr. and Mrs. Roderick List, who were married recently, were honored guests at the dinner. Entertainment was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Gladden Troutman, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hammel and Carl C. Leist. The program included a truth or consequence period; shadow box operation stunt; patriotic spelling contest; humorous readings and music.

Carl Leist was named to serve as president; Fritz Sieverts, secretary, and Mrs. Charles Walters, treasurer.

It was decided to hold meetings the last Thursday of each month. Mrs. Walters and Mrs. Donald Wolf were named as a contact committee for the group. The Rev. George L. Troutman and Mr. Leist were made co-teachers of the class. The next social session will be March 25.

Business Women's Club
Business and Professional Women's club enjoyed an excellent dinner Thursday at the Chicken Inn, 19 being served at tables decorated in pink and white and centered with bowls of pink and white flowers. Pink and white candles were at each end of the table, and favors of small lacy valentines at each cover.

Miss Frances Barnes, vice president, conducted the business session in the club room, Masonic temple, during which an invitation was read from the Logan club to attend its Founders' Day meeting on February 21. A letter from Olive H. Huston, state president of the Ohio Federation, announced a state board meeting in Columbus on February 13, the speaker to be Mrs. C. C. Shively, president of the State League of Women Voters.

Mrs. Anna Chandler read an interesting article on the subject of "Valentines," and traced their origin from the beginning to the present day.

The meeting was turned over to Miss Bease Gordon and Miss Florence Brown who directed the club members in a treasure hunt for valentines, the prize going to Mrs. Paul Kirwin. In a game of hearts, Mrs. Ralph Roby won first prize. Miss Minnie Palm was awarded first prize for making the prettiest valentine.

Plans were made for a card party which the club will sponsor Thursday, February 18. Mrs. Kirwin is in charge of ticket sales.

Five Points W. C. T. U.
Five Points W. C. T. U. held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Herman Porter February 10. The meeting opened with group singing of "America the Beautiful" and the devotional service conducted by Mrs. Mary Stoer. Included scripture reading from Isaiah 25 and the Lord's prayer. An invitation from the Williamsport Union was accepted to join them for a group institute on March 18.

Some interesting literature was read by members of the organization and the meeting closed with group singing. Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Porter assisted by Mrs. Charles Hosler and Mrs. Elwin Knapp of the February division.

Real Folks' Club
Nine members of the Real Folks' club were entertained Thursday at the home of Mrs. Grace Wentworth, West Union street. The afternoon was passed in contests and sewing. Mrs. Wentworth interested the group with a reading, "Abraham Lincoln."

The hostess served a delicious lunch at the close of the meeting. The next session will be at the home of Mrs. I. B. Weiler, West street.

Tuxis Club
Plans for the dance to be February 19 in St. Joseph's recreation center were completed Thursday at the meeting of the Tuxis club in the social room of the Presbyterian church. Miss Betty Moeller was in the chair and appointed Charles Will as chairman of the invitations for the invitational dance. Miss Moeller will be in charge of the tickets for the affair which will be at 10 p. m. following the basketball game between Circleville high school and the McClain high school of Greenfield. Coca Cola sales at the dance will be in charge of John Eveland and Dudley Coffland.

The committee announced for the next regular meeting, February 25, will include Mary Ellen Root, James Morehead, Carolyn Herrmann and Dudley Smallwood.

The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey led the discussion of the evening's topic, "Has Our Life Any Meaning?"

After a social hour, eats were served by Amanda Cayce, Donahew, Howell, Martha Hulse and Elizabeth Downing.

Ashville Garden Club
Mrs. Martin Cromley, Mrs. J. B. Cromley and Miss Wilma Jean Whitehead were guests in addition to 18 club members when Mrs. L. C. Schiff entertained the Ashville Garden club Thursday at her home.

The delightful program included a group of piano selections by Mrs. Eugene Borror who played "La Lison Jera" by Chaminade and "Terpsichore", by Hueter. Very interesting papers were presented. Mrs. William Cromley read an instructive paper on "Fruit and Nut Trees"; Mrs. Wright Noecker, "Growing Herbs for Home Use"; Mrs. Isaac Miller, "The Home Vegetable Garden"; piano selections, "Fingals Cave", Mendelssohn, and "Birdling", Grieg, Mrs. Martin Cromley; vocal solo, "Because of You", Mrs. Walter Hedges with Mrs. Borror at the piano.

Comparison of seed catalogues and discussion of the program concluded the excellent session. At this time, questions were answered by the women who had presented the informative papers.

Salem Ladies' Aid
Salem Ladies' Aid society met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Elmer Dodd, Pickaway township, with Mrs. Harry Sharret as assisting hostess. Mrs. Edgar Harral, president, opened the devotions with group singing, Psalm 23 being repeated in unison. Mrs. Harral read Psalm 113 and prayer was offered by the Rev. L. R. Wilkin. A check for $6.95 was reported from redeemed sales tax stamps.

Mrs. Charles Baldoser presented a reading, "Track the Kitchen Floor," and the Rev. Mr. Wilkin, "Symbols of Hope." Mrs. Wilkin offering the closing prayer. Twenty-one members and guests were served a refreshing lunch by the hostesses.

Mrs. Harral will be hostess at the March meeting.

Christ Lutheran Ladies' Society
Mrs. George Kern, assisted by her daughter, Helen, entertained the Ladies' society of Christ Lutheran church Thursday at the Kern home, Jackson township. Fourteen members and guests were present.

The Rev. George L. Troutman was in charge of the devotions and Mrs. Troutman read the topic of the month.

A short playlet, "First Things First", was presented by Mrs. Harry Kern, Mrs. Lyle Davis, Mrs. Noah List and Mrs. Lawrence Krimmel. Joyce Troutman sang one solo and Miss Kern conducted contests.

Refreshments concluded the meeting. The March meeting will be a covered dish affair, the plans to be announced later.

Royal Neighbors
The Royal Neighbors held installation ceremonies Thursday at the home of Mrs. Catherine Pearce, West Corwin street, with Mrs. Stanley Peters serving as installing officer. Twelve members were present and enjoyed a fine cooperative dinner at 7:30 p. m. The table where they were served was beautifully decorated with flowers and valentines.

Mrs. Peters will entertain the group at the next meeting, March 11, at her home on West Water street.

Circle 4
Circle 4 of the W. S. C. S. met Thursday at the home of Mrs. William Ray, South Court street, with Mrs. Guy Pettit and Mrs. Glen Hines assisting. Mrs. Clyde Cook, chairman, conducted the brief business period. Mrs. C. C. McClure as program chairman read the main article of the program on "Brotherhood."

It was reported that the informal food sale at the meeting was quite successful.

Hanawalt-Barthelmas
Miss Elizabeth Ann Barthelmas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barthelmas of Circleville, Route 2, and Raymond Hanawalt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hanawalt of near Mt. Sterling, were married Saturday at 4 p. m. in Trinity Lutheran church with the Elizabeth Downing.

where card tables were placed for games later in the evening. Buddleia and freezia in a large silver bowl centered the mirror-topped table in the dining room where the buffet supper was served. Candles in silver holders cast a soft glow over the crystal and silver service. Cocktails were served from a smartly appointed table at the side.

At the dinner party were Mr. and Mrs. John Boggs, Mr. and Mrs. N. Turney Weldon, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Harman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gilmore, Mrs. Florence Rector Jones, Mrs. Harry D. Jackson, Mrs. E. Lewis McDordie and George P. Foresman.

home of Mrs. Harry McGhee of that village.

Lt. and Mrs. Gayle Wolf, who have been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Wolf and Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Denman of Circleville for 10 days, will leave Saturday for Florida where he will report for duty at West Palm Beach February 15. They will be accompanied by Mrs. James P. Moffitt of East Franklin street who will visit her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Moffitt Jr., of Coconut Grove, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bidwell of Jackson township were Thursday business visitors in Circleville.

Mrs. Glad Willis of Washington township was a Thursday shopping visitor in Circleville.

Mrs. Clyde Brinker of Ashville

Old Dealers, GOP Urged To Fight War Draft Act

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—The vote on the War Mobilization Bill to revamp the jittery War Production Board and put certain Army-Navy production under civilian control was one of the most significant in ten years of the Roosevelt Administration.

This vote, which transferred the bill from the Education and Labor Committee to the Military Affairs Committee, saw the President appealing to Republican leaders—Senators McNary, Bridges, Lodge—to defeat his old New Deal friends. It saw him falling back on Old Deal Democrats who have bitterly attacked him—Byrd of Virginia, Reynolds of North Carolina, Tydings of Maryland—to get their support.

And the men Roosevelt slapped down in this vote, were those who had gone down the line for him when the going was really tough—on labor legislation, on neutrality revision, on social reform—men like Pepper of Florida, Thomas of Utah, Kilgore of West Virginia, Murray of Montana, Truman of Missouri.

The vote left a lot of sour faces in the Senate and may mean a gradual new line-up. For some New Dealers now declare they are finished with the "rubber-stamp" act.

BRASS HAT RE

Here is the inside story of what happened. The War Mobilization Bill had been carefully prepared by some of the President's best friends. They held months of hearings, wrote the bill after diligent, painstaking study. It set up machinery to referee the chronic battling between the Army, Navy, Maritime Commission and Mr. Jeffers as to whether critical materials would go to airplanes, rubber factories, escort vessels, etc.

In setting this battle, the bill proposed to take away some production powers from the Army and Navy, put them in the hands of a civilian umpire. This aroused terrific brass hat ire.

So the Army-Navy lobby got into full swing. And two weeks ago, young Republican Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, whom the President tried to defeat, told a closed-door session of the Military Affairs Committee how certain high-up Army-Navy officials had appealed to him. They had asked him to try to have the War Mobilization Bill referred to the Military Affairs Committee where it could be bottled up.

Ordinarily the bill would be referred to the Senate Education and Labor Committee, which had heard witnesses before, and knew the story. But Lodge said Army-Navy officials were afraid the Education and Labor Committee would report the bill favorably, then it would reach the Senate and might pass.

THOMAS BLOWS UP
Hearing this, mild-mannered Senator Elbert Thomas of Utah interrupted angrily. Thomas is ranking member of the Military Affairs Committee, also chairman of the Education and Labor Committee.

"In other words," he said to Lodge, "they told you that the bill must be transferred to this committee, and taken out of my hands, so it can be crushed?"

Lodge made no attempt to deny this. Senator "Happy" Chandler of Kentucky broke in to say that Economic Stabilizer James Byrnes was manipulating against the Bill backstage, and had telephoned Chandler.

There was so much commotion in the next five minutes that the present can't remember all the de-

Aquatic Stars to Meet Saturday in O.S.U. Tank

COLUMBUS, Feb. 12—Composed of a field containing all of the aquatic stars in the state, the annual Amateur Athletic Union swimming championships will be the main attraction on the Ohio State university campus Saturday afternoon. The regular schedule of events will be supplemented by an aquatic show presented by the Swan Club of the university.

The Ohio State team will be a decided favorite to take the lion's share of the honors but plenty of opposition will be furnished by Cleveland, Kenyon and Cincinnati swimmers.

Local fans will be given their first opportunity to see State's sensational freshman, Bill Smith, in action. The young Hawaiian lad now holds five world records and will be out Saturday to grab off a few state and pool marks. He will be swimming unattached.

Headed by its crack mile relay team, the Buckeye track squad will be in the East Lansing Saturday to take part in the annual Michigan State Relays. The mile quartet, fresh from its triumph last week in the Millrose Games in New York City, will meet some stern opposition at Lansing, especially from the University of Michigan and the Michigan State runners.

Ohio State's fencing team will resume activities Friday evening in Cleveland when it meets the Case swordsmen. The following afternoon the Oberlin team will meet the Bucks at the Case gym.

The basketball team, due to the war time schedule adopted this year by the Western Conference, takes another enforced rest and will remain at home preparing for its two games with Michigan the following week end.

NATIONAL LOOP HUNTING BUYER FOR PHIL CLUB

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Feb. 12—For sale: One baseball club known as the Philadelphia Phillies. No reasonable offer will be turned down. Communicate with the National League directors.

The situation is not that bad yet, but the transaction which was to have put the Phillies into the hands of new owners still is hanging fire, pending what is known as ironing out a few financial angles. Hence, as of this minute, the National league still is in possession of the ball club relinquished by President Gerry Nugent last Tuesday.

Two syndicates still are interested in talking over the club. But the two syndicates can't come to an agreement on what the stock is worth and, while League President Ford Frick is confident that the sale of the franchise will be completed shortly, he and his officials still are getting up in the middle of the night to prepare bottles for the temporarily adopted founding.

One development in the situation seems to be a certainty that Bill Terry, former New York Giant, will not be associated in any way with the proposition. His New York managerial regime—especially in the development of players—was none to brilliant, and supposedly the parties interested in the club are not interested in him.

A baseball man was asked what he thought the Philly franchise was worth and he said at first "not a dime," then added that he is talking about present times. He pointed out that the uncertainty of the future must mitigate against the league driving too good a bargain now. In normal times it would be different.

GIANTS TO GIVE HANDLEY TEST IN SPRING CAMP

NEW YORK, Feb. 12—The New York Giants' quest for infield strength has resulted in the purchase "on a look" of Lee Handley, 27-year-old former Pittsburgh Pirate third baseman who will report from Toronto for Spring training.

In the tentative deal with the Toronto club, the Giants have arranged to tryout Handley until "around May 1," according to Secretary Eddie Brannick, then will close the transaction or turn him back to the minors.

The tryout angle is based on the fact that Handley suffered an arm injury in an automobile accident early in 1942 and the Giants will keep him only if he has completely recovered.

Handley was with the Pirates from 1937 through 1941. He appeared in only 69 games with Toronto last season and batted just over .200.

Handley is 3-A in the draft.

Col. Winn Highly Pleased By Approval For Derby As Home Town Event

CROWD TO BE REDUCED

No Special Trains And No Tourist Business To Be Handled

CHICAGO, Feb. 12—Col. Matt J. Winn, 81-year-old head of Churchill Downs, was jubilant today on the word from Joseph B. Eastman, director of defense transportation, that the Kentucky Derby had been approved, but strictly as a "trolley car" affair.

The derby will be run Saturday, May 1, as originally planned, but there will be no special trains and no great influx of motor tourists as in former years. It will be, so far as it is possible to make, exclusively a Louisville event with outsiders discouraged from attending.

Col. Winn said when told that approval had been granted on his assurance that applications for boxes and reserved seats from outside the Louisville area would be rejected:

"I am very happy to receive such good news. We will adhere strictly to the requirements put forth by the office of defense transportation."

The Churchill Downs management stands to fall far short of its usual take on Derby day, when from 80,000 to 100,000 racing fans have attended in the past, but Col. Winn wanted to keep intact the unbroken string of derbies of which the 1943 classic will be the 69th.

He had declared that, if given permission, he would run the derby even if only two horses were entered and a handful of spectators was present.

Fewer men—51 against 66—threw passes than in 1941, and league passing efficiency fell off from 44.3 percent in 1941 to 43.4 percent, the figures showed.

Isbell's records included: Most passes completed for a season, 145 (former record, 124, by Davey O'Brien, Philadelphia, 1940. Also broken by Baugh and Bud Schwenk, Chicago Cardinals.)

Old Dealers, GOP Urged To Fight War Draft Act

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—The vote on the War Mobilization Bill to revamp the Jittery War Production Board and put certain Army-Navy production under civilian control was one of the most significant in ten years of the Roosevelt Administration.

This vote, which transferred the bill from the Education and Labor Committee to the Military Affairs Committee, saw the President appealing to Republican leaders—Senators McNary, Bridges, Lodge—to defeat his old New Deal friends. It saw him falling back on Old Deal Democrats who have bitterly attacked him—Byrd of Virginia, Reynolds of North Carolina, Tydings of Maryland—to get their support.

And the men Roosevelt slapped down in this vote, were those who had gone down the line for him when the going was really tough—on labor legislation, on neutrality revision, on social reform—men like Pepper of Florida, Thomas of Utah, Kilgore of West Virginia, Murray of Montana, Truman of Missouri.

The vote left a lot of sour faces in the Senate and may mean a gradual new line-up. For some New Dealers now declare they are finished with the "rubber-stamp" act.

BRASS HAT RE
 Here is the inside story of what happened. The War Mobilization Bill had been carefully prepared by some of the President's best friends. They held months of hearings, wrote the bill after diligent, painstaking study. It set up machinery to referee the chronic battling between the Army, Navy, Maritime Commission and Mr. Jeffers as to whether critical materials would go to airplanes, rubber factories, escort vessels, etc.

In setting this battle, the bill proposed to take away some production powers from the Army and Navy, put them in the hands of a civilian umpire. This aroused terrific brass hat ire.

So the Army-Navy lobby got into full swing. And two weeks ago, young Republican Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, whom the President tried to defeat, told a closed-door session of the Military Affairs Committee how certain high-up army-navy officials had appealed to him. They had asked him to try to have the War Mobilization Bill referred to the Military Affairs Committee where it could be bottled up.

Ordinarily the bill would be referred to the Senate Education and Labor Committee, which had heard witnesses before, and knew the story. But Lodge said Army-Navy officials were afraid the Education and Labor Committee would report the bill favorably, then it would reach the Senate and might pass.

THOMAS BLOWS UP
 Hearing this, mild-mannered Senator Elbert Thomas of Utah interrupted angrily. Thomas is ranking member of the Military Affairs Committee, also chairman of the Education and Labor Committee.

"In other words," he said to Lodge, "they told you that the bill must be transferred to this committee, and taken out of my hands, so it can be crushed?"

Lodge made no attempt to deny this. Senator "Happy" Chandler of Kentucky broke in to say that Economic Stabilizer James Byrnes, was manipulating against the Bill backstage, and had telephoned Chandler.

There was so much commotion in the next five minutes that those present can't remember all the details. But for the first time in his 10-year career in the Senate, placid Senator Thomas blew up. He began with some sulphurous comments on the executive branch of government "dictating" to Congress and ended with a scorching philippic on the blunders of Army and Navy procurement officials in providing equipment for the armed forces.

"I have always been faithful to the Army and Navy and have carried the ball for them on important war measures, including the dependents' allotment bill," the Utah senator stormed.

"Somebody at least could have called me up and told me what was going on," he exploded. "After all, I'm chairman of the committee that has been handling the bill."

Lodge was disturbed by the outburst, later phoned Byrnes, urged him to placate Thomas. Byrnes called Thomas' office several times, but couldn't reach him. The Stabilization Boss also was on the phone most of the morning of the day the Senate voted on the "transfer" resolution, whipping Democrat senators into line to smother the "New Deal" Bill in the anti-New Deal Military Affairs Committee.

Later Senator Thomas confided to a friend: "I've been an administrator wheeler for 10 years, and have had to take a lot of abuse in the newspapers on labor bills. But this double-dealing is the payoff as far as I am concerned."

FRANK KNOX'S JINX
 Around the Navy, they figure that Frank Knox has the jinx on him when it comes to public relations. Though the Secretary of the Navy has spent his life as a newspaperman, and should be an expert on public relations, it is his luck to say the wrong thing at the worst time.

It isn't his fault. It's the jinx. Who would have foreseen, for instance, that just as a magazine came out on the streets with an article by Frank Knox, "We Can Win on Both Oceans," the Japs would put eight battleships out of commission at Pearl Harbor and practically paralyze us in one ocean.

Then, just as Frank Knox got back from a 22,000-mile flight through Pacific areas and announced that we were supreme in that ocean, the Navy admitted that a serious sea and air battle was launched by the Japs to retake the Solomons.

It looks as if the Japs almost waited to synchronize their attacks with Frank's statements.

MERRY-GO-ROUND
 When Col. Melvin E. Gillette of the Army Signal Corps asked Hollywood producers to cooperate in making more training films, Harry Warner of Warner Brothers held back until the Army apologized for investigating the training films produced by Col. Darryl Zanuck and 20th Century-Fox. Real fact is that the Army investigated the cost of producing all training films, not merely those of one company. Assistant Secretary of State Adolf Berle, who studied Greek and Latin at Harvard when he was still in knee breeches, recently was the subject of a series of caustic profiles in the New Yorker. State Department associates say: "We're having it translated into Latin so he can read it."

Aquatic Stars to Meet Saturday in O.S.U. Tank

COLUMBUS, Feb. 12—Composed of a field containing all of the aquatic stars in the state, the annual Amateur Athletic Union swimming championships will be the main attraction on the Ohio State university campus Saturday afternoon. The regular schedule of events will be supplemented by an aquatic show presented by the Swan Club of the university.

The Ohio State team will be a decided favorite to take the lion's share of the honors but plenty of opposition will be furnished by Cleveland, Kenyon and Cincinnati swimmers.

Local fans will be given their first opportunity to see State's sensational freshman, Bill Smith, in action. The young Hawaiian lad now holds five world records and will be out Saturday to grab off a few state and pool marks. He will be swimming unattached.

Headed by its crack mile relay team, the Buckeye track squad will be in the East Lansing Saturday to take part in the annual Michigan State Relays. The mile quartet, fresh from its triumph last week in the Millrose Games in New York City, will meet some stern opposition at Lansing, especially from the University of Michigan and the Michigan State runners.

Ohio State's fencing team will resume activities Friday evening in Cleveland when it meets the Case swordsmen. The following afternoon the Oberlin team will meet the Bucks at the Case gym.

The basketball team, due to the war time schedule adopted this year by the Western Conference, takes another enforced rest and will remain at home preparing for its two games with Michigan the following week end.

The situation is not that bad yet, but the transaction which was to have put the Phillies into the hands of new owners still is hanging fire, pending what is known as ironing out a few financial angles. Hence, as of this minute, the National league still is in possession of the ball club relinquished by President Gerry Nugent last Tuesday.

Two syndicates still are interested in taking over the club. But the two syndicates can't come to an agreement on what the stock is worth and, while League President Ford Frick is confident that the sale of the franchise will be completed shortly, he and his officials still are getting up in the middle of the night to prepare bottles for the temporarily adopted founding.

One development in the situation seems to be a certainty that Bill Terry, former New York Giant, will not be associated in any way with the proposition. His New York managerial regime—especially in the development of players—was none too brilliant, and supposedly the parties interested in the club are not interested in him.

A baseball man was asked what he thought the Philly franchise was worth and he said at first "not a dime," then added that he is talking about present times. He pointed out that the uncertainty of the future must mitigate against the league driving too good a bargain now. In normal times it would be different.

GIANTS TO GIVE HANDLEY TEST IN SPRING CAMP

NEW YORK, Feb. 12—The New York Giants' quest for infield strength has resulted in the purchase "on a look" of Lee Handley, 27-year-old former Pittsburgh Pirate third baseman who will report from Toronto for Spring training.

In the tentative deal with the Toronto club, the Giants have arranged to tryout Handley until "around May 1," according to Secretary Eddie Brannick, then will close the transaction or turn him back to the minors.

The tryout angle is based on the fact that Handley suffered an arm injury in an automobile accident early in 1942 and the Giants will keep him only if he has completely recovered.

Handley was with the Pirates from 1937 through 1941. He appeared in only 69 games with Toronto last season and batted just over .200.

Handley is 3-A in the draft.

RACING IN BALANCE

NEW YORK, Feb. 12—Racing fans today awaited a conference between the state racing commission and other officials to decide whether New York's suburban horse tracks will operate as usual this Spring. The conference, which will be held within the next few days, is expected to clear up reports that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's office has been requested to curtail racing activity at New York tracks.

BILL THOMPSON BACK

The reactions to Bill Thompson on last Sunday's McCarthy show were so favorable, the young comedian will pay a quick return visit February 14. As previously announced, Charlie Ruggles will also be a guest on the program over NBC at 8 p. m.

Thompson, who does "Old Timer," "Mr. Whimple," and other characters on the Fibber McGee and Molly program, did a gremlin routine with Bergen last Sunday and also boomed forth as "Horatio Q. Boomer." Bill is one of those rare comedians who became big-time in radio without a long history of vaudeville appearances behind him.

Ray Noble's orchestra and Dale Evans, singer, do the musical portions of the half-hour.

BILL THOMPSON BACK

The reactions to Bill Thompson on last Sunday's McCarthy show were so favorable, the young comedian will pay a quick return visit February 14. As previously announced, Charlie Ruggles will also be a guest on the program over NBC at 8 p. m.

Thompson, who does "Old Timer," "Mr. Whimple," and other characters on the Fibber McGee and Molly program, did a gremlin routine with Bergen last Sunday and also boomed forth as "Horatio Q. Boomer." Bill is one of those rare comedians who became big-time in radio without a long history of vaudeville appearances behind him.

Ray Noble's orchestra and Dale Evans, singer, do the musical portions of the half-hour.

Heavier Production Task Assigned to Farmers of County

VEGETABLES IN NEW PICKAWAY QUOTA OF FOOD

100 Acres Cabbage, 88 Of Cantaloupes, 100 Onions 130 Tomatoes Needed

TO BE SOLD AT MARKET

Truck Not To Be Counted In Total Required For Processing

Pickaway county farmers, already expected to carry a heavy load in 1943 in the government's Food for Freedom program, were assigned an even heavier task Friday when state AAA set up quotas for vegetable growing for sale on markets in central Ohio.

Goals for vegetables announced to the Pickaway county AAA office are the first assigned to Pickaway county, and AAA officials declare that they are much concerned whether the goals can be reached.

Under the set up the county is asked to grow 100 acres of cabbage, 88 acres of cantaloupes, 100 acres of onions and 130 acres of tomatoes. No goals are set up for other garden products.

Go To Market

The AAA office was informed that these acreages are for foods to be sold at market and are not to be counted for commercial processing.

AAA officials are pointing to the shortages of labor and farm machinery as drawbacks in the effort to produce the acreage asked by the AAA. Output of all other products declared to be essential to the war effort has been stepped up this year.

Farm officials declared that some of the crops asked by the government are considered manpower crops with much care and attention required from the time soil preparation is started until they are harvested.

Information concerning the quotas has been issued to AAA community committeemen who have started to confer with men in their townships concerning the goals. It is up to the committeemen to issue necessary information to countyians and to induce them to pledge added production to meet the goals.

Wheat Loans Paid

AAA office said Friday that less than 150 wheat loans out of a total of 908 completed on the 1942 crop remain to be liquidated with April 30 as the liquidation date. Call by the Commodity Credit Corporation for all loan papers not later than February 20 has speeded liquidation to some extent.

All banks holding loan papers have been ordered to submit them to the CCC not later than the February 20 date so the loan papers can be checked.

Hundreds of farmers having loans on 1942 crops have earned large profits by liquidating their loans at the present time. It is expected that before the February 20 deadline arrives nearly all loans will be liquidated.

Government officials are endeavoring to clear all storage space possible so there will be plenty of room for the new crop when it is harvested. Last year a serious problem developed when new wheat started to move in before storage facilities were cleared.

FILM SETS RECORD

Grand theatre set an all-time attendance record this week when 4,233 persons saw "Hitler's Children", story taken from the best seller book, "Education for Death." The movie was shown five days starting Sunday.

We Are Swamped

Since shoe rationing went into effect we have been SWAMPED by the number of shoes that have been brought to our shops for repair!

Many persons have brought in eight and ten pairs of shoes, and we feel sure they don't need that many repaired right at this time. A few customers have demanded that their shoes be repaired IMMEDIATELY—which is impossible.

There is no shortage of repair materials and we are quite sure that there will be no shortage. There is plenty of leather, nails, etc. for repair work.

We know that there are some persons—such as school children—who need repairing at once. We want to give the children repairs as quickly as possible but it is hard for us to tell when preference should be given.

So, we are appealing to your "fair play" not to ask for "over-night" work unless it is urgent that you need shoes.

Right now we have hundreds of shoes that have been repaired and uncalled for so we feel sure that there is no urgent need for some shoes that have been sent in.

LET'S ALL BE SENSIBLE AND SANE ABOUT THIS MATTER AND NOT SEND SHOES TO YOUR REPAIR SHOP UNLESS YOU NEED THEM FOR IMMEDIATE WEAR!

We wish to announce that both of our shops will be
